COLLEGE NOTES.

OUR illustrations show the Reredos and Tablet, which are parts of the College War Memorial. They are from photographs taken for the Magazine by the Clarendon Press. We have also had collotypes made of the same pictures, which are of a larger size (20 by 16 inches paper surface, 14 by 11 inches printing surface). Copies may be obtained on application to the Bursar or to the Treasurer of the Magazine. Price: 1/6 each, or (including packing and postage) 2/6 for one, 4/- for the pair.

The small but very deserving body of people who were subscribers to this Magazine in 1914 have probably long ago decided that they put their money on the wrong horse. For not coming out during the war we shall probably be forgiven. Some College Magazines did so, but we are not ashamed of the fact that such a thing was out of the question at Hertford. We ought, however, to have appeared at least a year ago. Our only excuse is that the life of the College was so completely broken up by the war, that in the two years which have now been spent in restarting it there has been little leisure for reflection and collecting information. Also, so long as the cost of production was steadily soaring, we hesitated to quote new terms of subscription. We now feel justified in hoping that prices will not soar any more, and having once got a number out we propose to do so regularly. We shall come out once a year, probably at about this time, and the subscription will be half a crown; but, as it is extremely difficult to get half-crowns paid up annually, we suggest that our subscribers pay us half a guinea, and they will then receive the Magazine for five years. Our existing subscribers paid us rather less and received two numbers a year. We hope they will be willing to regard each of the numbers they receive henceforth as two. The law is probably on their side, but we think they will agree that reason is on ours.

We very much hope that we shall be able to make a very considerable increase in the number of our subscribers. The Magazine was started largely in order to bring former members of the College more closely into touch with the College and with one another. It started in 1910: rather tentatively, because we were uncertain as to whether it was really wanted. The abuse we have received for our recent inactivity shows that the Magazine really is wanted, at least by some people, and we are bringing this number to the notice of a much wider circle, earnestly hoping that everyone who possibly can will become a subscriber. If this happens we do not propose to reduce the subscription, but to give you more for your money, and possibly to get back to the old practice of appearing twice each year.

So much has happened since 1914 that the present number necessarily differs from the ordinary form. There is so much solid fact to include that we have had to give our wits and poets a rest. To a certain extent we have tried to include six and a half years of College history, but as no one was reading the newspapers for the Magazine during the war, cautious readers will not argue from silence, especially when studying the news of past members. Finally, we have made no attempt in this number to give a record of what our members did in the war. The Hertford section of the Roll of Service has been sent to those whose names occur in it, or to their next of kin. It is to be feared that it is incomplete; it contains at least two mistakes, and in accordance with the rules laid down for the University Roll of Service, of which it forms part, it contains the names of those only who served in the armed forces of the Crown. But we feel that it is as good a record as it is possible to get, and we do not propose to attempt any other.

There have inevitably been various changes in the staff since the war, but the Principal, who is now in his ninety-first year, is going strong. He practically never misses a Chapel, and entertains the undergraduates as regularly as ever. He was in Norway when the war broke out, and at once made a hazardous journey home. He has not since been to Norway, but thinks nothing of travelling to the Lizard in the day. He has, however, handed over to Mr. J. E. Campbell his ordinary College work, and Mr. Campbell is now Vice-Principal, an office for which his activities during the war when, in extraordinarily difficult circumstances, he did the work of Bursar, Dean, and Senior Tutor, and anything else that wanted doing, makes him particularly well qualified.

Until the Armistice Mr. Jackson continued to act as Treasurer of the various University Clubs, of the Hertford Clubs, and as Steward of the Hertford Senior Common Room. He was single-handed, and in every case he had difficult financial problems to face. Needless to say, all these concerns pulled safely through. But it was a great tax on Mr. Jackson's health, which had begun to fail before the war, and after the Armistice he resigned from all his offices. He is still living in Oxford, but is unable to get down to College. We hope it is a consolation to him to know that his policy of organising the finances of University and College Athletic Clubs alone prevented financial chaos during the war, and made it possible for athletics to resume in all their old variety as soon as the war was over.

We have to report several deaths of Fellows and ex-Fellows. Mr. Atkinson, who had only worked at Hertford for one Term, was killed in the war. Mr. Sargent, who a few years before the war had returned to live in Oxford, died in 1915. Mr. Hamilton, who, though he had ceased to be Fellow was still Librarian, died in 1916, and we have also lost Mr. Capes, who was Fellow, Lecturer and Bursar; Mr. Balmer, a former Dean; and Mr. Muir Mackenzie, who was a non-resident Fellow for many years.

Mr. Bennett vacated his Fellowship upon his marriage in 1915, as did Mr. Burroughs upon his election to a Fellowship at Trinity. Mr. Denniston also vacated his upon his marriage in 1919, but has since been re-elected. The Fellowships thus left vacant have not at present all been filled, but on their return from the Army the Rev. J. McL. Campbell and C. R. M. F. Cruttwell were at once elected to Fellowships. Mr. Campbell had, of course, been Chaplain since 1909, and Mr. Cruttwell will not have been forgotten by those who were up from 1912 to 1914, when as a Fellow of All Souls' he was acting as Modern History Tutor at Hertford, and the most brutal member of our Rugby XV. We have, too, a new Fellow and Lecturer in Philosophy in Mr. N. R. Murphy, of Brasenose, who takes Mr. Atkinson's place. Mr. Murphy took his Firsts in 1911 and 1913, and saw a great deal of fighting on various fronts in the war, finishing up as a captain attached to the Tank Corps. He is such an institution now that it seems rather late to welcome him, but we beg leave to do so retrospectively.

Two distinguished ex-Fellows have recently been elected to Honorary Fellowships. One of them, Lord Francis Hervey, has resigned his position as Acting Trustee of the Baring Trust, in which position he has for years done the most unsparing service to the College. It was work done unostentatiously behind the scenes, and only the Governing Body can possibly appreciate the full extent of it. But many of us are familiar with his signature on the cheques which arrived in green envelopes in payment of our scholarships (and part-payment of our battels), and regret that we shall not see it there any more. It is some comfort to know that his place has been taken by Mr. Riddell (the ex-Dean), than whom we can imagine no more suitable successor.

Our other new Honorary Fellow is the new Bishop of Carlisle. Several generations of Greatsmen and many of our readers besides will rejoice that he remains one of ourselves, though a very serious gap is left in Oxford by his departure to Rose Castle (surely the most colossal house into which even he has ever effected an entry?)

We feared during the war that Mr. Burroughs was doing more work than was good for him, and when normal conditions returned he found his tutorial work at Hertford incompatible with his Canonry at Peterborough and his various more strenuous activities. So he has accepted a chaplaincy at Trinity, and when in Oxford is to be found in comfortable quarters there between his first love (Balliol) and his second love (us). After fifteen years it seems strange to have him with us, but not in the first instance of us, but we shall persist in continuing to regard him as belonging to Hertford. We shall never forget the interest he took in members of Hertford, both on and off parade, and in particular his work as a connecting link between Oxford and Hertford men in the Army.

Inside College there has been a sort of General Post. Mr. Campbell has handed over the Bursarship to Mr. Haselfoot, and we are lucky in having a second astute mathematician to undertake that particularly thankless office. Mr. Whatley has succeeded Mr. Haselfoot in the dignified but vague office of Senior Tutor, and has handed over the Deanship to the more ferocious Mr. Cruttwell, who suits his part extremely well. Mr. Denniston has taken on the vacant Librarianship.

No notes on recent changes in our staff would be complete without a reference to the deaths of two very well-known and devoted Hertford servants, Mr. Butler, the head cook, and Mr. George Beesley, the messenger. We say more of them elsewhere.

A study of the news of our old members will show that Hertford is very much coming into its own in the world. Bishops and distinguished Civil Servants seem to be particularly plentiful. Hertford, to the best of our knowledge, has never been rich in bishops before, but our new crop of five gives us something to set against the ecclesiastical dignitaries of Magdalen Hall, who look down on us from a dizzy height on the north wall of the Hall: soon they will have to go higher still. In the Civil Service, ex-scholars of Hertford not only sign our treasury notes, but are at or near the top of nearly every important department. Lastly, in the person of Mr. Grant Robertson, we supply for the first time the Head of a Provincial University.

Until the end of 1918 Hertford was full of officer cadets. Until April, 1919, it was partially occupied by officers undergoing a course of what was mysteriously called education. Thus the College did not have full use of its buildings when Oxford began to resume its life. But already in January some thirty undergraduates had returned, or come up for the first time, to keep what must surely have been about the most singular Term in the whole history of the University. Nothing much could be done with such small numbers, though a four did compete with a fair measure of success in some races on the river. There were practically no Dons, and only a very limited number of scouts. The gate was shut for the night at eleven, and all meals were in Hall. But it was a most enjoyable Term. To men who had spent several years in the Army it was like a dream to live as an undergraduate in mufti, even in a place so badly in need of paint and a mowing machine as Hertford then was.

Altogether about twenty previous undergraduates returned either in that or the following Term. But most of these only came back in order to make up their minds as to a profession, or to await an opening. To-day there are only three ancient undergraduates in Hertford who remember the appearance of our last number in May, 1914. The rest are veterans of the Army and boys from school in about equal numbers, with the balance, of course, beginning to fall in favour of the latter. In the summer of 1919 a small party of American officers came to us for one Term, in accordance with a scheme of the American military authorities, before returning to the States. We wish they could have stayed longer to see Oxford settle down. In that Term we had about seventy undergraduates: in October, 1919, about a hundred. In October, 1920, about one hundred and thirty, which is likely to remain our total for the next year or two. Hertford has firmly resisted the temptation, to which many of the smaller Colleges have succumbed, to let its numbers leap up more quickly than they could be absorbed. It was felt that with College life restarting practically ab ovo and with many older undergraduates who were to be up only for a short time, it was most desirable that the College should begin slowly and walk before it tried to run. In particular it seemed essential that only a small proportion should live in lodgings. We have, in consequence, been the smallest College, except Corpus. In some ways this may seem to have been a mistake: in athletics in particular we have been at a disadvantage against the vast hordes of our opponents, but we firmly believe that in the long run the policy will prove to have been right. It is at least possible at Hertford for a tutor to know all his pupils by sight, and all the undergraduates who wished it have, at least for a short time, had rooms in College. The College is still a College and not a club. When other Colleges return, as they soon will, to more normal proportions, our turn will come.

Experiments in domestic economy, which were widely practised in Oxford after the war, did not leave Hertford untouched. After a variety of schemes had been sampled, it was decided that breakfast should be served as a common meal in Hall, but that lunch, as in the days when food was cheap, should be consumed decently in private. This arrangement seems likely to be permanent. It is not as bad as it will sound to our old members, for breakfast in Hall has led to the abolition of Rollers. The sharing of a sitting room by two undergraduates, unheard of in Oxford before the war, but quite common since, has only been possible to a very limited extent in Hertford, whose topography is unsuitable.

Had there been no war, the College would by now probably possess a front in Holywell, and the Octagon House would have been restored and incorporated. The war has postponed, we fear for some years, the possibility of such work. But the housing problem was a very urgent one a year ago. Undergraduates were finding it necessary to go two miles out in order to find lodgings, and this was clearly very unsatisfactory, especially at a time when some of those in lodgings were Freshmen. As a makeshift it was decided to take over the upper parts of the Octagon House and of our houses in Holywell, and to link them up with the new quad. In this way we have acquired two new staircases. On one, in the Octagon House, four undergraduates dwell in mediaeval surroundings, and we hope that the picturesqueness of their situation reconciles them to the unevenness of their floors. The other staircase meanders through several linked-up houses, and deserves to be called the rabbit warren much better than the present holder of that title. But the rooms are not so bad, and though the chimneys smoke and you are apt to get lost while finding your way from your sitting room to your bedder, it has proved a very useful experiment. It is of course only a temporary arrangement, and the shops on the ground floor have not been taken over.

One result of this change is that this Magazine is no longer printed on Hertford soil, for the Holywell Press has migrated to much more commodious premises in the old O.T.C. Headquarters in Alfred Street. The old printing house (with the glass roof) has been demolished, and the amenities of life on Staircases III and IV thereby considerably increased. The new quad is now nearly twice as big as it was, and the Chaplain's newly-acquired horticultural enthusiasm has immensely improved its appearance. The old bicycle shed, which looked so grim and shielded its bicycles so inadequately, has been removed, and the only blots on the landscape now are the new German gun, which is something of a white elephant, and the glaring red wall of the Indian Institute. A few well-meaning young trees are doing their best to hide the eyesore, but nothing but a convulsion of nature can ever do so satisfactorily, and even that is much more likely to remove the Octagon House.

The incorporation of these extra buildings has brought the College practically to the limits of its own property, yet it is hard to believe that in time to come we shall not stand badly in need of further extensions. Should these words catch the eye of any prospective benefactor, let him note that only by the acquisition of neighbouring property in Holywell can the College ever hope to extend further, and that there seems no chance of such acquisition being effected, except by private enterprise.

With the exception of the War Memorial, of which we give an account elsewhere, there have been no other important structural alterations in the College, but a good deal has been done in a small way. No repairs had been carried out during the war, and a great deal of paper and paint was required to make up arrears and to remove the traces of the military occupation. There still remain a number of wall-papers, whose peculiarly Victorian design has not been entirely obliterated by the passing of the years, and even the oldest of the visitors to the Hertford dinner on April 20th, will be unlucky if he cannot trace (probably in the same old rooms) some, at least, of the furniture which he possessed as a Freshman. On the other hand, attempts have been made to improve the supply of hot water, which was so often criticised in earlier numbers of this Magazine. Shower baths have been introduced to meet the extra demand for cleanliness which has resulted from the war (or the Bridge?), and during the vacation a number of weird appliances (the recommendation of a culinary expert) have been introduced into the kitchen. Perhaps more will be done when the Royal Commission, before which the Vice-Principal and Mr. Whatley gave evidence, has finished its enquiry into our resources.

HERTFORD COLLEGE WAR MEMORIAL.

The War Memorial consists of three parts—a Memorial Tablet, a Reredos, and a fund for War Memorial Exhibitions. The tablet and reredos were completed last summer, and photographs of them will be found in this Magazine. The tablet (on the south wall of the Chapel, between the stalls and the sedilia) was designed by Sir T. G. Jackson, R.A., Architect of the Chapel, and gives the names, with regiment and date of death, of the ninety-eight members of the College and of the servant of the College who fell in war. The names of the fallen are arranged in the order of their deaths, and the regiments are described by their official abbreviations. At the top of the central panel the following dedication is inscribed on bronze :—

MCMXIV—MCMXIX

TO THE GLORY OF
 GOD AND IN PROUD
 AND GRATEFUL
 MEMORY OF THE
 MEMBERS OF THIS COLLEGE WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES IN THE
 GREAT WAR
 THIS MEMORIAL
 TABLET AND THE REREDOS ADJOINING
 ARE ERECTED BY THEIR FRIENDS AND CONTEMPORARIES THAT THOSE WHO COME AFTER MAY NOT FORGET

The Reredos was also designed by Sir T. G. Jackson, and the central sculpture was made from a beautiful block of Pentelic marble by Sir George Frampton, R.A. Both tablet and reredos were executed and put in position by Messrs. Farmer and Brindley.

A Memorial Service was to have been held in October, 1919. The railway strike necessitated its postponement until January, 1920, when a considerable number of relatives of the fallen attended, together with members of the College who had fought in the war. It was an impressive service, at which the Principal gave a short and moving address.

The tablet and reredos were dedicated at a simple service held on the first Sunday of Michaelmas Term, 1920.

The contributions so far received towards the Memorial amount to £3,110 8s. 9d., or, including the interest received on deposit, to £3,190 9s. 2d. The tablet and reredos have cost £571 os. 3d. and £2,594 9s. 11d. respectively, leaving a balance of £24 19s., which has been credited to the War Memorial Exhibition Fund, for which one or two of the contributions were expressly ear-marked. This fund has received in addition from the Baring Trustees War Bonds of the nominal value of £4,000, representing emoluments held by scholars and scholars elect who fell in the war: also Mr. L. E. Atkinson's Fellowship. There is in addition a considerable sum representing part dividends. One Memorial Exhibitioner is already in residence, and two others have been elected. The Exhibitions are reserved, in the first instance, for near relatives of members of the College who fell in the war. Failing qualified candidates, they are declared open. It is also hoped that it may be possible, out of the income of the fund, to provide some help to those members of the College who are in special need of assistance. At present Hertford, unlike most Colleges, has no funds for this purpose, and it seems a most suitable way of commemorating the fallen. In most cases those who find it hardest to support themselves at Oxford owe this difficulty to the war, or to circumstances arising directly from it. The list will therefore be kept open, and subscriptions will be thankfully received by Mr. C. E. Haselfoot, the Hon. Treasurer.

The following sums have been received in addition to those which were announced in a circular sent to past members of the College last year:—

HERTFORD COLLEGE DURING THE WAR.

[Many of our readers have already received a short statement of what happened at Hertford during the war. The following article is included for the benefit of those who did not receive the former statement and for purposes of record.]

The ordinary life of the College ceased almost entirely. Few undergraduates, except Freshmen and American Rhodes' Scholars, were in residence during the winter of 1914—15. After that the number dropped to single figures, the only residents being a few men who were unfit and later on one or two who were invalidated out of the Army. There were only five matriculations in four years. Much the same happened with the Dons. At the end of the war only one Fellow was in residence, and there was great difficulty in obtaining a quorum for College meetings.

Upon the outbreak of war the College offered to lend its buildings for military purposes. In June, 1915, this offer was accepted, and from that time for nearly four years Hertford was used continuously in connection with the training of officers. At first officers already commissioned came, fifty at a time, for elementary training. These lived more or less like undergraduates, except that they had all their meals in common. About 300 officers, in relays, lived for a short time in Hertford in this way. In March, 1916, the Officer Cadet Battalion system was started, and Hertford became the home of 'B' Company, No. 4 O.C.B., at first 100 and then 150 strong, which remained for nearly three years. Altogether about 1,000 cadets, including considerable contingents from Australia and New Zealand, were the occupants of Hertford for periods varying from four to six months. They did not enjoy all the comforts of undergraduate life: they lived four in a sitting room, with two others in the bedroom. Meals and lectures were parades (this sounds incongruous now, but seemed perfectly natural then): they had to tidy their own rooms and submit their kit for inspection. (Imagine the Vice-Principal, preceded by Mr. Barter and the porter and followed by the Bursar, Dean and various Tutors conducting a weekly inspection of undergraduates' kit, properly laid out according to plan. 'I am sorry to see, Mr. Murphy, that your men do not know the proper place for soap,' or 'Commoner X appears to have mislaid his tooth-brush,' or 'Remember, Mr. Cruttwell, smart Dons make smart undergraduates.') But, in spite of all this, the cadets became loyal adherents of the College, whose colours they wore in the Parks and on the river (where they were very successful), and two or three have returned to us as undergraduates. The new buildings served as sleeping quarters, and the turret room on the first floor of Staircase I was the Company Orderly Room. On the other side of the bridge the cadet was allowed to adopt the airs of an officer, and the J.C.R. and various lecture-rooms were used as club-rooms. The officers lived on the Broad Staircase, and the Cottage served, when necessary, as a hospital. Messrs. Whatley, Cruttwell and D. Freeman (11) were at various times officers of the Company. The first-named commanded it during the greater part of its existence: the others were with it for shorter periods after their return from France. J. Glover, now regimental sergt.-major of the O.T.C., made an ideal C.S.M.

Soon after the Armistice the last company of cadets departed, but their place was taken by officers sent for training as Education Officers, who came in relays for short periods, about 300 of them in all. In April, 1919, the prospect of undergraduates returning in large numbers compelled the College to evacuate the military and return to its normal activities. Thus ended the most remarkable interlude that the College has ever seen or is likely to see.

Soon after the war the War Office presented German trench mortars to a few selected Colleges which had housed troops more or less continuously throughout the war. Hertford was one of the favoured ones, and the mortar (which arrived addressed to the Headmaster of Hertford) is now in situ near the Library. Later on the War Office became more prodigal of its trophies, and heavy German field pieces were distributed with embarrassing liberality. Hertford has received a particularly large specimen, which at present dwarfs the new quad. When we get our own cricket ground, the parts of the College which were removed for this monster's entrance may perhaps again be dismembered to allow its exit to a more suitable resting place.

OXFORD SINCE THE WAR.

To a casual visitor the place cannot seem to have changed very much. Most noticeable would be the neglect of head-gear by day and the wearing, or at least carrying, of gowns by night. The former practice originated in the difficulty experienced by demobilised officers in deciding what sort of hat to buy: the latter arises partly from a dislike, very natural in impecunious times, of contributing unnecessarily to the fiscus of the University much. Most noticeable would be the neglect of head-gear. Sam Browne in public and a respect for authority and regulations which was very successfully fostered in the Army, but has never been characteristic of the Public Schools. Neither of these practices is likely to last very long. Otherwise the only changes in clothing are those which the economic situation has dictated. Fashions are simpler and two suits have to do duty where there were three before. The blue suit and bowler on Sundays are quite extinct, and the only rakish development is a rather flamboyant line in knicker-bockers. These are especially patronised by people who intend one day to play golf.

The casual visitor might also notice that undergraduates are more numerous than they were, that their average age is considerably higher, that they make less noise, attend more lectures and take it less for granted that nothing can possibly be improved in this best of Universities. No doubt these are also in part merely passing peculiarities. Men who came to Oxford out of the Army had made up their minds as to what they wanted, and were in many cases already rather old for the lighter side of College life. Oldish men will probably continue to come here in larger numbers than they did before, but they will very soon cease to form any considerable part of the community. It is, however, very noticeable that the tendency to take life rather more seriously than of old is not by any means restricted to older undergraduates or to those who have been in the Army. Either the schools have changed or the older element has affected the whole lump. Probably it is a bit of both: anyhow, it seems to us to be a good thing, and though when the war generation goes there is sure to be some reaction, we believe that the influence of the men who came to Oxford with real experience of life will be a lasting one. It is not desirable that the abandon of the old life should go altogether. Profitable as psycho-analysis may be it is unlikely, and probably not desirable, that the discussion of its problems should become the regular evening occupation of Freshmen. Excellent as literary, philanthropic and political meetings may be, it is to be hoped that they will not always be quite so bewilderingly numerous as they were in 1919 and 1920. Indeed they already seem to be on the decrease. But if the present generation leaves behind it a tradition of more genuine interest in questions of importance, it will not merely do no harm, but will work a change which the present attitude of the country towards the older Universities makes eminently desirable.

Inside the Colleges there have been changes which a casual visitor might not so easily notice. These changes have been mainly either economic or social. In the field of economics the great problem has been to prevent the cost of Oxford life soaring at the same rate as the general cost of living. This problem has been solved with some measure of success. The increase in numbers has of course assisted to keep down charges. The standard of living has been simplified: it is no longer customary to entertain to three-course breakfasts, and Hall dinners assume less appetite than they did. Possibly the salary and wage earners of the University have been less insistent than their comrades in the rest of the country in pushing their own claims for increases and bonuses. By these means the increase in the necessary cost of an Oxford education has been kept down to about 50 per cent. But for many even that increase is not easy to pay, and the Colleges have been making various experiments in the interests of economy. About half the Colleges are at present trying the experiment of providing breakfast or lunch, or both, in Hall. Some have experimented with soviets: that is to say a committee of undergraduates has been granted a more or less official voice in domestic management. We do not gather that these official soviets have accomplished much. The chief aim seems to be to get a better dinner at half the price. But in most Colleges it has been found possible without a soviet to give undergraduates rather more say than of old in matters which, after all, concern them very nearly. This is an excellent thing, and we hope it will continue, but it will not be nearly so easy when undergraduates are once again people who have never superintended Company accounts and messing.

The social change in College life is more remarkable. After the war a sprinkling of the old undergraduates returned, but they were a very small minority. The Colleges filled up rapidly Term by Term with men who differed considerably in age, but were all more or less of the same University standing. Consequently the old precise division into years and the respect of the junior towards the senior have partially disappeared. Athletics, though as popular as ever, are not quite so important. This does not seem to have done any harm. College feeling is as strong as ever, and the criticisms of the mature Freshman have put our institutions to a test which only the sound ones can survive. The only danger is that the habit of criticism may create a desire to change even the sound ones simply because they are institutions.

There is another marked social change. Oxford is now recruited from a much greater variety of schools than before, and many more points of view, both from home and overseas, are represented. On the whole the various elements have blended extremely well. No post-bellum development gives more ground for optimism than this tendency of Oxford to become really representative of the nation. We sincerely hope that economic depression will not stop further development along these lines, and that the supplanting of the ex-soldier by the schoolboy will not re-introduce shyness and misunderstanding between different elements.

Finally, two great changes have been made by University legislation. Caps and gowns have joined the company of artifex and opifex, and undergraduates of either sex can be found who can neither conjugate τύπτω nor tell you the genitive singular of ἀνώγειον. Neither of these changes seems as yet to have been as catastrophic in its effects as was thought likely.

ELECTIONS TO SCHOLARSHIPS AND EXHIBITIONS.

The following were elected as a result of the examination held in December, 1920 :—

Scholars.—(i) Baring Scholars :Open.—J. W. Baggally (Hertford), E. M. Holland (Charterhouse), and T. Watkinson (St. Peter's, York) in Classics. N. L. Clapton (Royal Grammar School, Worcester) in Mathematics. J. S. Brewis (Eton) in History.Essex Scholar.—G. C. F. Hayter (Malvern) in Classics.

(ii) Minor Scholars :

C. E. Steel (Wellington) in History (Lusby Scholar) and C. H. Wasdell (Hertford) and J. G. Stansfeld (Repton) in Mathematics.

Exhibitioners.—(i) War Memorial :

J. H. R. Lynam (Rugby) in Classics and R. Pipe-Wolferstan (Winchester) in History.

(ii) College :

N. B. Chard (Leeds) and J. H. Felton (Felsted) in Classics.

C. P. Cowley (Winchester) in History.

THE CHAPEL.

'Outside' sermons have recently been preached by the Dean of St. Paul's, the Rev. W. J. Carey and Canon Cooke, of Christ Church.

THE HOP-PICKING SETTLEMENT.

After six years' interval, to the joy of the pickers, who gave an immense reception to the Rev. J. McL. Campbell, the College in September resumed occupation of its quarters on the old site at Crowhurst Farm, Peckham Bush. The pickers had changed less than we had. Most of the best-known characters were still there, though there was, of course, a fresh crop of babies. Ailments, grievances and songs seemed to have been but little affected by the war, but the standard of living was perhaps rather higher. The Hertford visitors were nearly all fresh to the work, to which they took with considerable enthusiasm. The visit was necessarily of a somewhat experimental nature, and among other things a good deal had to be done in the way of repairing the camp equipment. But a very satisfactory start was made, and the settlement should be in full swing again this year, when the weather, at any rate, cannot be worse. A great deal is due to those who did the pioneer work so well in September. The Chaplain was, as of old, the life and soul of the enterprise.

THE LIBRARY.

The Library was never famous for its completeness, and had remarkable powers of concealing the few useful books it did possess. During the war it became less up-to-date than ever. Since the war it has started on a new life. The purchase of books is now a very serious difficulty for most of us, and it was decided that the Library must do more to assist the ordinary reading of undergraduates. The College has voted considerable grants (the Library has only a very small endowment), which have been spent almost entirely on books wanted for the Schools. Meanwhile the new Librarian has made an arrangement of the books according to subjects (previously, as far as we could make out, they were arranged according to shape), and those parts of the Library which are in ordinary use have been freshly catalogued. It is becoming a very fairly useful College Library, and is very extensively used. It has also been considerably enriched by the bequests of three Hertford men—N. L. Mackie, R. H. Gregory, M.C., and H. Wallis—who were killed in the war. The first-named left to the College a most useful collection of modern law books, and the last two equally useful collections of works on science and mathematics. There has also arisen a pleasant habit of presenting books to the Library both among old members (especially the Rev. W. J. Ferrar), Dons and undergraduates (especially N. Hadcock).

All this testifies to the fact that the Library has become a much more popular institution, and it is to be hoped that undergraduates who are going down this summer will not forget that it is as easy to present a book to the Library as to sell it, and that duplicates of the books in most general use are very much welcomed. Those who are fined by the Dean may also have the consolation of knowing that the Library benefits by their misdoing.

THE COLLEGE SERVANTS.

At the beginning of the War the younger servants joined the Army. Frank Green, who before the War was assistant to Fred Alder on the Broad Staircase, was killed on July 1st, 1916. J. H. King, the Porter, in spite of his age, rejoined the Oxford and Bucks Light Infantry, became Regimental Sergeant-Major, and served in France and Salonika. Some of the younger servants did not return to the College after the War, but there are a number of additions to the staff who seem likely to make loyal and valuable servants of the College.

The older servants worked unsparingly during the War and had a very exacting time. They had to undertake nearly all the service required by the military occupation, and there were no vacations. The strain was too great, and the two oldest did not long survive the War. Mr. Butler had been head-cook since the foundation of the College, and no College ever had a more devoted or better servant. During the War, when his health was failing him, he could not be persuaded to leave his work: at one time (though 80 years old) he was cooking practically single-handed for 5 officers and 150 cadets. He had to retire just before the end of the War, and died suddenly on June 9th, 1920. In his place we are glad to have his son, who was head-cook at All Souls. George Beesley's health gave way in the summer of 1919, and he died on October 4th. Officially, of course, he was College Messenger, but that title gives but a poor idea of his manifold activities. In recording his death, the local papers described him as the best known College Servant in Oxford, and we will leave it at that. Most of our readers knew George, and it is not possible to describe him to anyone who did not. Burborough, the second cook, also died during the War, being taken suddenly ill while at work in the kitchen. Walter Smuin broke his leg early in the War and had to retire: he is still in Oxford and fairly well. Fred Alder retired after the War: leg-trouble compelled him to give up, but he is well otherwise. Skerry has had to give up his staircase, but has charge of the Chapel and works in the Buttery. Herbert, Potter and Cattle are on their old staircases: Martin and Hunt are now on the Broad: Humphreys, Bateson and Honey have taken over staircases. 'Henry' Bly, his shadow undiminished, remains in the Buttery, King in the Lodge, and Byles in the S.C.R. The other Hunt still looks after the bicycles, the baths and the lawn, and Mr. Barter, carrying his years extremely well, still presides over the whole establishment.

On December 31st the Vice-Principal and Mrs. Campbell gave a party in College to the servants and their families, which was a great success.

The Hertford Servants' Bowls team (S. P. Barter, S. Bly, W. Hunt and J. H. King) carried all before them in the summer of 1920.

It is a happy omen for the future that the Hertford Servants are this year once again, after a long interval, entering a Four for the Inter-College Servants' Races, which are imminent as we go to press. It is a young crew, and shows considerable promise. Names:—S. Barter (bow); 2, Harris; 3, Pollicot; Wale (stroke); Honey (cox).

Stop Press.—Hertford beat Ch. Ch., beat University, lost to B.N.C. in the final. W. V. Harris won the Challenge Sculls—the first time this Cup has been won by Hertford.

THE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS.

The O.T.C. was revived after the war, in the autumn of 1919. The College contingent, though not very strong in numbers, has up to date entered a team for all competitions, and has succeeded in winning that for the Lewis gun held at Bicester.

A. D. Williamson was a member of the Varsity shooting team at Bisley, and was awarded a half-Blue.

H. F. Waldock was a member of the O.U.O.T.C. tug-of-war team against Cambridge at Olympia in 1920.

M. D. Thomas has shown great energy and tact in the difficult task of re-starting the Hertford Detachment.

Only when the present generation of officers has departed will the O.T.C. be a really natural institution. All things considered, it is greatly to the credit of all concerned that the College Detachment has made as good a start as it has.

COLLEGE CONCERT.

On the Saturday in Eights' Week, the College gave a very successful concert. It was a domestic affair, at which all the artists belonged to the College or were closely connected with it. Miss Denne Parker (sister of H. M. D. Parker) and J. C. Alexander, who is now a professional singer, were the soloists, and present members of the College did the rest. The night was so fine that refreshments could be served in the interval in the illuminated quad. Even financially the concert was a success, and we are very glad to hear that there is to be another this year. Mr. Allchin has a real genius for running these concerts. We wish we could have one every Term.

COLLEGE CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

Neither the Harts Sailing Club nor the Shakespeare Society have been revived at present. Both were very pleasant institutions, but even before the war they had ceased to have any very close connection with sailing and the Swan of Avon respectively. On the other hand, the Fox and the Tyndale are both going strong. The latter in particular meets most regularly, and has listened to a great variety of papers.

There is also a new Society, appropriately named the Hobbes, which discusses papers on historical subjects. There is plenty of room for such a Society, and we hope it has come to stay.

A considerable number of meetings have been held in College in connection with the League of Nations Union, the Religion and Life Movement and other questions of the hour. Also meetings in connection with the various University Settlements. An attempt has, however, been made to do away with the competitive element in these and in the collection of subscriptions which usually follows them. In each of the last two years a joint meeting has been held, at which representatives of different Settlements have spoken. Similarly there has been one combined collection. This system is undoubtedly more decent and simple, and has even proved more remunerative than the old, and we believe that it will be adopted in other Colleges. We wish to thank the representatives of the Settlements, especially the Head of Oxford House (Rev. E. P. Woollcombe [07]), for falling in with the scheme.

The College now has a joint committee of Dons and undergraduates, representing various different interests, to deal with all matters concerned with Social Service, including the College Hop-picking Settlement which, as stated elsewhere, was revived last summer.

J. C. R.

The following have been the College Officials:—

Hilary and Summer, 1919.—President, R. T. Peel; Vice-President, C. H. B. Blacker; Secretary, B. Ashmole.
1919-1920.—President, M. D. Thomas; Vice-President, C. H. B. Blacker (Michaelmas, 1919); H. M. D. Parker (Hilary and Summer, 1920); Secretary, F. A. Waldock.

1920-1921.—President, H. M. D. Parker; Vice-President, F. A. Waldock (Michaelmas, 1920); J. N. C. Ford (Hilary and Summer, 1921); Secretary, J. N. C. Ford (Michaelmas, 1920); O. R. Tisdall (Hilary and Summer, 1921).

DINING CLUB.

The old 'J.C.R.' was revived in the Summer Term of 1919 under somewhat modified conditions. After consultation between the two old members of the Club in residence, P. C. O. Riddell and C. H. B. Blacker, and the S.C.R., it was decided that the Club should be placed in closer touch with the J.C.R., and distinguished from the latter by the addition of Dining Club to its title. The chief points in the amended constitution are that the officials of the J.C.R. are also the officials of the Dining Club, and that every member of the College has the right to nominate eligible candidates (the conditions of eligibility being as in pre-war times) to the Committee, composed of the three J.C.R. officials and two co-opted members, with whom the selection ultimately rests. The intention of the framers of this new constitution was to make the Club not only a pleasant social function, but also representative as far as possible of the various interests in the College, and their efforts have not been unsuccessful. The Club has dined four times a Term, and two of the dinners in each Term have been Guest Nights. At the Going-Down Dinner in 1920, the Rev. H. H. Williams, Principal of St. Edmund Hall, was present, and the Club was glad to have this opportunity of offering their congratulations upon his appointment to the Bishopric of Carlisle, although our good wishes were tempered by many personal regrets at his departure from Oxford.

FOX DEBATING SOCIETY.

This Society, which had been defunct for some years before the war, was re-started in the Hilary Term of 1919. As there were only some thirty members of the College in residence, it was felt that some Society, membership of which was open to the whole College, was a good way of reviving the life of the College. This aim was realised to a considerable extent, and even now, when the College is fully up to strength, the Society still flourishes and the standard of debate has improved.

Two joint debates have been held, one in 1920 with B.N.C. on the Irish Question, and another in 1921 with Corpus, in which one side maintained the anachronistic nature of the British Empire.

As the officials are numerous and constantly changing, it will suffice to record the names of the Presidents:—R. T. Peel, M. D. Thomas, A. Bevir and C. F. Adams.

THE TYNDALE SOCIETY.

This Society was revived in the Michaelmas Term of 1919 on grounds similar to those existing before the war, except that debates were no longer included in the programme. This modification was due to the revival of the Fox Society which, it was considered, afforded ample scope for budding orators. The Society has met on Mondays, and papers have been read by various members on subjects connected with art and literature.

The officials were as follows:—

1919-1920.—President, H. M. D. Parker; Secretary, J. W. Parkes.

1920-1921.—President, P. K. Baillie-Reynolds; Secretary, R. G. Dunt.

ATHLETIC CLUBS.

In the following notes a summary is given of the College athletics since the Clubs started again in 1919. It is not a very brilliant record. Small numbers, casualties and the fact that a considerable proportion of our undergraduates were crippled in the war are partly responsible for this, but the fact remains that it is not a brilliant record, and a big effort must be made to improve it. There should be a great opportunity for this next year. We are losing many fewer men than most Colleges at the end of the summer, and it is rumoured that we shall have a bright lot of Freshmen. Even as it is, we have some good news to report. The Eight made more bumps last summer than it has made for many a long year, and we have done very well at Athletic Sports, in which there has been a great boom since the war.

The Clubs are seriously concerned at the moment over the question of a ground. The old arrangement by which we play football in the Parks and cricket on the Running Ground has worked very well, and there would be no question of changing it but for the fact that our tenancy of the Running Ground is very insecure, and may be terminated at any moment. As it becomes harder each year to secure a good ground within easy reach, the situation is clearly an awkward one, and it has been decided to try and obtain a ground of our own. Negotiations are now taking place. The chief difficulty is financial. Pavilions, horses, groundmen and heavy rollers are expensive things in these days, to say nothing of buying and levelling the ground. Even with our present swollen numbers, the Clubs do little more than pay their way. This does not seem a suitable time for sending the hat round to old members, but contributions towards the necessary expenses are badly wanted, and will be most thankfully received.

In February, 1919, Mr. C. N. Jackson resigned the post of Senior Treasurer to the Clubs, and a resolution was passed at a meeting of Captains and Secretaries, thanking him for his long services. Mr. Whatley is temporarily acting as Treasurer in Mr. Jackson's place.

The following have represented Oxford against Cambridge :

Rugby Football.—1919 : F. A. Waldoek, H. F. Waldoek. 1920 : H. F. Waldoek (Secretary).

Cricket.—1919 and 1920 : F. A. Waldoek (Secretary in 1920).

Athletics.—1920 : J. N. C. Ford, Hurdles and Relay (Hurdles). 1921 : Long Jump and Quarter Mile.

Boxing.—1920 and 1921 : J. G. S. Thomas, Light Weights (winner on each occasion).

Epée.—J. D. Hardman.

Shooting.—A. D. Williamson, Chancellor's Plate and Humphrey Cup.

The following have in addition played in University Trials :—

Rugby.—K. J. Franklin, J. F. W. Nicolson.

Soccer.—A. J. Holmes, H. Edwards, M. E. Webb, C. Penticost, S. K. Ghosh, Cricket.—R. T. Peel, E. H. Watkins, A. S. Hinshelwood, H. F. Waldoek.

Hockey.—G. Stoughton Harris, H. F. Waldoek, F. A. Waldoek, H. J. Rose, T. Sinha, J. Howell.

H. F. Waldoek has been Captain of the O.U.R.U.F.C. since Christmas. He played for the rest against England and has been reserve for the English XV.

J. D. Hardman was beaten in the final pool of the Amateur European Epée Contest.

HERTFORD COLLEGE BOAT CLUB, 1919—1921.

Despite the small numbers in residence during the Easter Term following the Armistice, work was begun in Tub Pairs, and races were arranged in March by the O.U.B.C. for Torpid Eights and Tub Fours. Owing to lack of practice and difficulties of coaching, it was agreed to put on a Four, composed as follows :

Bow, A. S. Brown; 2, K. J. Franklin; 3, H. M. D. Parker; Stroke, R. L. Walker; Cox, B. Ashmole.

After defeating B.N.C. II and St. Catharine's on the first and second nights, they were beaten by Merton on the last night by five seconds. The crew were rough, but worked with enthusiasm, and much was due to Mr. Whatley for his coaching.

SUMMER TERM, 1919.

Provisional Bumping Races having been arranged by the O.U.B.C. for two divisions on sliding and fixed seats respectively, a Fixed Seat Eight started practice, with a view to laying the foundation for the Torpid in the following spring. Starting in the 1914 order, the races continued for four nights. Having been bumped by University II on the first night, Trinity II was caught on the third night, and on the last night the crew just failed to bump St. Edmund Hall, through fouling the bank at the Free Ferry. The crew was as follows:—

Bow, E. H. Carew; 2, W. E. Dalton; 3, E. J. Haynes; 4, J. W. Thorburn; 5, A. S. Brown; 6, R. L. Walker; 7, H. M. D. Parker; Stroke, A. Bevir; Cox, F. G. Patterson.

HILARY TERM, 1920.

The regular Torpid Races were rowed this Term, Colleges starting in the 1914 order. After Fours Races in the Michaelmas Term, a Torpid crew was formed and went into training, those who had rowed in the previous summer being eligible. During the races we had the misfortune to start sandwich boat at the top of the Third Division. After bumping Jesus College on the second night, we all but overhauled Wadham on the third, and kept our position for the last three nights, on the last two of which we again became Sandwich Boat through St. John's taking their third boat off the river. The following composed our crew:

Bow, E. J. Haynes; 2, E. H. Carew; 3, C. P. Tindal-Atkinson; 4, H. M. D. Parker; 5, C. F. Adams; 6, R. L. Walker; 7, A. Bevir; Stroke, H. Guy; Cox, R. d'E. Atkinson.

SUMMER TERM, 1920.

Training was begun for the Eights a week before Term, and despite a certain roughness and unevenness, the crew showed capacities for rowing hard, and thereby succeeded in putting the boat up four places during the six nights' rowing.

In the first three nights, the following bumps were made:—Balliol II, St. Edmund Hall and St. Catharine's. After failing to catch Jesus College on the fourth night, we bumped them successfully on the fifth, and finished up on the sixth with a hard race against Keble, a quarter of a length separating the two boats up the Barges. The crew was as follows:—

Bow, E. J. Haynes; 2, J. W. Thorburn; 3, E. H. Carew; 4, H. M. D. Parker; 5, W. C. Jepson; 6, R. L. Walker; 7, C. P. Tindal-Atkinson; Stroke, A. Bevir; Cox, R. d'E. Atkinson.

HILARY TERM, 1921.

Most of the previous year's Torpid crew having rowed in Eights, this year's Torpid had to be made up from men who had had but little experience. During training, the improving style and rhythm of the crew showed promise of continuing the successes of the previous year.

The races themselves, however, were disappointing, our boat losing one place to Lincoln on the first night; on the remaining nights, St. John's II was all but overhauled, our failure to bump them being due on two occasions to the catching of 'crabs,' and on the other occasions to staleness through rowing Sandwich Boat for five nights in succession. The following composed the crew:—

Bow, E. V. C. Plumtre; 2, R. d'E. Atkinson; 3, J. W. Baggally; 4, J. W. Whiteman; 5, W. F. Malcolm; 6, H. R. Green; 7, R. G. Browning; Stroke, D. R. Michener; Cox, J. A. Noble.

Our thanks are due in no small degree to Mr. Lee, of Magdalen, who has coached both last summer's Eight and this year's Torpid with such success, and has taken a very great interest in the Boat Club both last year and this.

It is early to prophesy concerning next Term's Eight, but it is hoped that, despite the loss of six of last year's crew, the tradition of hard racing will be continued, and that the boat will make some more places.

HERTFORD COLLEGE CRICKET CLUB, 1919—1920.

In a moderately successful season we were rather unfortunate in being drawn, in the first round of the Cup, against Trinity, who were well above the average as a College side. We lost on the first innings, though we managed to knock off the arrears with the loss of only three wickets, and anything might have happened had there been time to complete the game.

Apart from Cup matches we did well, having on the whole a strong side, especially in batting. The bowling rather lacked variety, as nearly everyone attempted to bowl fast. The result was that the wicket-keeper, W. M. E. Martin, met with a most unfortunate accident, which kept him out of the side for the latter half of the season.

F. A. Waldock is to be congratulated on getting his Blue, R. T. Peel received his 'Authentic.'

The following are the leading averages:—

BATTING.

	Inns.	Not out	runs	Most in Inns.	Average.
F. A. Waldock	6	2	264	67	66.00
H. F. Waldock	17	2	621	100	41.40

R. T. Peel	193	22	766	39	19.6
H. Baring	149	19	584	29	20.1

The following played more or less regularly :—

A. S. Hinshelwood, R. T. Peel, M. D. Thomas, F. A. Waldock, H. F. Waldock, E. H. Watkins, W. M. E. Martin, H. Baring, C. M. Humphries (all of whom had their colours), P. E. C. Pendock, J. S. Gowing, H. J. O. Marshall.

Played 18; Won 6; Lost 5; Drawn 7.

Capt.—A. S. Hinshelwood; Secretary.—M. D. Thomas.

In 1920 the team was not so strong, a fact partly caused by the inability of several members to play regularly. We were again rather unfortunate in the draw for the cup, as we met in the first round Magdalen, who ultimately reached the final.

The chief acquisition among Freshmen were J. F. W. Nicolson, J. N. C. Ford and H. F. Mooney. H. F. Waldock received his 'Authentic.' W. M. E. Martin kept wicket with great success.

The leading averages were as follows :—

BATTING.

	Inns.	Not out	Runs	Most in Inns.	Average.
J. F. W. Nicolson	15	4	383	85	34.82
E. H. Watkins	14	5	279	78*	31.00

The following played more or less regularly :—

M. D. Thomas, E. H. Watkins, F. A. Waldock, H. F. Waldock, W. M. E. Martin, C. M. Humphries, J. F. W. Nicolson, H. F. Mooney, H. J. O. Marshall, J. N. C. Ford (all of whom had their colours), P. E. C. Pendock, J. G. S. Thomas, P. K. Baillie Reynolds.

Played 15; Won 3; Lost 5; Drawn 7.

Capt.—M. D. Thomas; Secretary.—E. H. Watkins.

The experiment of arranging a cricket tour was tried, the idea being to raise a mixed team of past and present members of the College. On the whole this was a considerable success, though unfortunately this year it was impossible to get a purely Hertford side, and several 'strangers' had to be introduced. Three matches were played, a fourth with Sussex Martlets being prevented by the bad state of the Brighton ground. We drew (very much in our favour) with both Eastbourne and Hastings, and lost to Blue Mantles. We twice made over 400 in an innings and J. F. W. Nicolson scored two most attractive centuries. Past members of the College were represented by B. J. Scott and R. T. Peel. It is hoped to repeat the experiment in 1921.

H.C.R.U.F.C.

Captain—K. J. FRANKLIN.Hon. Secretary—E. H. WATKINS.

We were unable to field a side during Hitary Term, 1919, owing to the small numbers in residence. A certain number of games were played in conjunction with Keble.

The season 1919—1920 was not marked by many successes. Only three old players were available, Watkins, Jolley and Jepson, of whom the last-named alone remained uncrocked, while there was little material to draw upon among the Freshmen. Mr. Cruttwell and Mr. Murphy played on various occasions, and their services were of great assistance to an inexperienced team.

The best form was shown by J. H. H. Brown at back, Nicolson and C. R. Davies outside the scrum, and Franklin, Tisdall, Keith and Moor of the forwards.

1920—21.

The following were elected officers for 1920—1921 :—

Captain—O. R. TISDALL.Hon. Secretary—J. H. H. BROWN.

During the past season of 1920—21, the Rugger team, although unable to claim a large number of victories, has had a fairly successful season. The main difficulty throughout has been lack of material, as less than twenty men could be counted upon as regular players. During the Michaelmas Term this difficulty was enhanced by the abnormally large number of casualties, no less than four of the senior members of the team being put out of action for the Term, while many minor casualties also helped to deplete the ranks. In the Hilary Term, however, matters improved from this point of view, and although we did not win very many matches, in most cases they were hard-fought games, lost largely owing to the side being an exceptionally light one.

Our opponents in the first round of the Cup-tie were St. John's, with whom we had a game notable chiefly for the dogged defence put up by the behinds, whose chances of attack were limited owing to the superior weight of the other side in the scrum.

Amongst those who distinguished themselves during the season were K. J. Franklin, whose hard work and weight in the scrum were exceedingly valuable, and J. F. W. Nicolson, whose pace and alertness were very useful behind.

H.C.A.F.C.

The team of the Christmas Term, 1919, was really quite successful, considering the size of the College. It finished half-way up the 1st League Table and put up one especially good show against New College, whom we beat 2—1. The Easter Term was less successful, as we lost to St. John's in the first round of the Cup, and had a desperate struggle to avoid relegation. However, a victory against Lincoln, 1—0, on the last day of Term made us safe. As to the team itself, the forward line suffered from constant changes owing to illness, &c., while the halves, though on the slow side, were the strength of the team. The backs were variable; they lacked decision on occasions and were rather prone to miskicking. Humphries in goal was let down at times by the backs, but on the whole was sound.

The final arrangement of the team during the Easter Term, after the departure of Holmes for Rhodesia at the end of the Christmas Term, was as follows:—

C. M. Humphries; H. Edwards and H. J. O. Marshall; E. C. Wood, J. G. S. Thomas and P. E. C. Pendock; D. T. Adams, E. Everiss, H. V. M. Pendock (Secretary), P. C. O. Riddell (Captain) and J. C. Neely.

The Christmas Term, 1920, was entered on under a serious disadvantage, Riddell, Humphries (the goal-keeper), Edwards and Everiss having gone down, and Thomas being unable to play regularly owing to the claims of boxing. Edwards in particular, the best player in last year's team, was sadly missed, and the post of right-back was very hard to fill until Pendock solved the difficulty by going there himself.

The season has been one of dismal failure, but the side is not really to blame. A full team has been played in only one match during the two terms, and where there are only some sixteen or eighteen regular players, the absence (very frequent) of Captain, Secretary, and a forward through injuries is bound to weaken the team considerably. We finished at the bottom of the League table, were beaten by Merton 5—1 (after a draw 2—2) in the Cup, and lost the match with Worcester to decide the question of relegation 2—0. But in this latter match two of the team were away and two others played when normally they would have been resting more or less serious injuries. There were bright spots during the season, e.g. the draw 3—3 with Jesus was quite creditable. And the badness of the team's record for the present season does not mean that we shall even be likely to do as badly next year. We have been without the present Secretary, M. E. Webb, since the middle of October, and his presence will make a great difference to the forward line, which at present, with the exception of the left wing, is deficient in dash. Pentecost and Neely, however, are both good shots. The halves were again the strong point of the team, Wood in particular showing extraordinary ball control. It is a pity that the backs chose the Worcester match to have a day off, but it is only fair to say that neither of the two people who played right back had played there before during the season—they were both forwards. Such is the disadvantage of small numbers. On the whole, however, the backs were quite average, but as Brown in going down at the end of the summer, a right back is one of the more pressing necessities of the team. Munn in goal varied surprisingly. His two chief faults are lack of decision in running out to clear, and inability, natural in a converted forward, to save a shot by falling. But he made some very good saves, and with a little more practice should become quite useful. The team as a whole was slow, and weak at heading: to this latter rule there were, however, some surprising exceptions.

One more point may perhaps be mentioned. Punctuality, in any game except Solitaire, is a courtesy due to and from each one of those playing in that game. Those of the team who are staying up must bear that in mind for next year; the present season has been most unsatisfactory in this respect. A list of the team is appended. H. V. M. Pendock, Captain during the Christmas Term, was general utility man of the side: he was much missed, but otherwise the team has been the same (when available): L. S. Munn; J. H. H. Brown, H. J. O. Marshall (capt.); J. G. S. Thomas, E. C. Wood, P. E. C. Pendock; D. T. Adams, C. H. Wasdell, C. Pentecost, J. F. W. Nicolson, J. C. Neely.

There is absolutely no reason why—with average luck in respect to Freshmen and injuries—we should lose a single match next year, if only there is no falling off in the keenness of the side, because the matches played will be in the 2nd Division of the League and not in the First.

HOCKEY, 1919—1920.

Captain—P. K. BAILLIE REYNOLDS.

Hon. Secretary—G. STOUGHTON HARRIS.

During the Hilary Term, 1919, the four or five undergraduates who played Hockey combined with Worcester to form a composite team, which played several matches with but indifferent success. Such organising duties as were necessary in this Term were performed by P. K. Baillie Reynolds, who subsequently became Captain in Michaelmas Term, 1919, while G. Stoughton Harris was elected Secretary. The latter, with F. A. and H. F. Waldock, played in Senior Trials, while H. J. Rose played in Freshers' Trials, and on one occasion played for the Varsity.

The team was weak, especially in the wing-halves, and of the nineteen matches played, only three were won and one drawn. Colours were given during the Term to G. Stoughton Harris, E. H. Watkins and A. Lycott-Martin.

In Hilary Term, 1920, the team progressed considerably, and the improvement shown was largely due to F. G. de J. Paterson on the right wing, and to B. Ashmole as right-half. Though defeated by New College in the preliminary round of the Cup at the beginning of the Term, the team gave a much better account of itself later, and of the fifteen matches played, seven were won and one drawn.

During the Term colours were given to M. D. Thomas, B. Ashmole, F. G. de J. Paterson and H. F. Mooney.

G. Stoughton Harris was elected Captain for the next year, and A. Eycott-Martin Secretary.

1920—1921.

Captain—G. STOUGHTON-HARRIS.

Hon. Secretary—A. EYCOTT-MARTIN.

At the beginning of the season we were full of hope, but, on the whole, the results of College matches did not come up to expectations, and we were defeated by Merton in the preliminary round of the 'Cupper.'

We had quite a good side when all the regular players were available, but when any of these were away for one reason or another, we had few reserves to draw upon. The team was distinctly strengthened by the inclusion of H. F. Waldock when the claims of Varsity Rugger did not conflict with those of College Hockey.

The team was as follows:—T. Sinha; *H. F. Waldock, *E. H. Watkins; *P. K. Baillie Reynolds, *A. Eycott-Martin, *E. E. Stock; R. C. Dunt, J. Howell, *G. Stoughton-Harris, *M. D. Thomas, *F. G. de J. Patterson. The following also played more or less frequently: E. W. Gilbert, H. J. Rose, V. G. Shearburn, D. Norwood, H. J. O. Marshall, J. C. Neely.

* Colours.

LAWN TENNIS CLUB, 1919.

Captain—J. B. BROWN.

Hon. Secretary—L. W. FOX.

We did not have a very successful season, and were defeated by Queen's in the first round of the 'Cupper.' The following represented the College in that match: *J. B. Brown, *G. Stoughton-Harris, *F. D. Kingdon, G. C. K. Jolley, B. Ashmole, J. Hoyt. Also played: H. ff. Ozanne, L. W. Fox.

1920.

Captain—G. STOUGHTON-HARRIS.

Hon. Secretary—F. D. KINGDON.

The team was decidedly stronger this year, and consequently the number of victories in Inter-College matches was greater. We defeated Exeter in the first round of the 'Cupper,' but succumbed in the second round to Balliol, who reached the final. Unfortunately, from the point of view of the Tennis Club, J. F. W. Nicolson was frequently not available, owing to the rival claims of cricket. The following composed the team:—*G. Stoughton-Harris, *F. D. Kingdon, *J. F. W. Nicolson, *P. G. Schulz, *A. Eycott-Martin, *B. Ashmole.

Also played: R. C. Chalk, M. D. Thomas, R. L. Walker and H. J. Rose.

* Colours.

The Principal very kindly presented a Silver Challenge Cup for singles to be competed for annually. We congratulate J. F. W. Nicolson on becoming entitled to hold it until 1921.

ATHLETICS.

President—M. D. THOMAS (who was also on the O.U.A.C. Committee).

In the season 1919—20 the College, by defeating Keble and B.N.C., reached the semi-final of the Inter-College Cup Competition. We were then defeated by Magdalen after a very close struggle, the result depending on the last race.

We congratulate J. N. C. Ford on winning the Long Jump and being second in the Hundred Yards and Hurdles in the Freshmen's Sports, and later on receiving his Half-Blue for the Hurdles, in which event at Queen's Club he beat both Cambridge representatives.

For the College, perhaps the best performers were J. N. C. Ford, R. McD. Boyd and C. R. Davies.

President—J. N. C. FORD.

In 1920—21 a new system of running the Cup was introduced, six colleges running at a time, the first three surviving the round. We were unfortunately fourth in our first heat. In the Inter-College Relay Races—also an innovation—we reached the final in the Hurdles and semi-final in the Half-Mile.

We entered one team for the Varsity Cross-Country, in which J. G. S. Thomas, the Boxing Half-Blue, ran extremely well.

J. N. C. Ford won the O.U.A.C. Long Jump, and was third in both the 440 Yards and Hurdles. He was awarded a Full Blue for the Long Jump, but was beaten at Queen's although Oxford won the event. Both he and M. D. Thomas were members of the O.U.A.C. Committee.

NEWS OF PAST MEMBERS.

We wish to call attention to the fact that by the Representation of the Peoples Act anyone who has ever taken any Degree of the University (even a B.A.) may now obtain the University Parliamentary vote, whether his name is still on the books of the College or not. All you have to do is to write to the Registrar of the University for the necessary form and return it to him with 10/- (it has recently been reduced to this from £1). This sum will be returned to anyone who at a later date compounds for his dues as M.A. If Oxford is to retain its two seats in Parliament, it is essential that the electorate should be increased. In fact registration as a voter has now been made compulsory in the case of everyone taking his first degree.

Retention of their names on the books of the College by old members thus becomes less commercially attractive than ever, but from the College's point of view it remains extremely important, for reasons both of sentiment and influence, that there should be a large number of M.A.'s on the books. Hertford still has less than its proper share of these. If you have taken your M.A., you can replace your name on the books at any time, and much the simplest thing to do is to compound for your dues to the University and College for life. Here is the present scale:—

M.A.'s may compound for life for the annual charges according to the following scale:—

	University Dues.		College Dues.		Total.
If they have not exceeded the age of 40 years	10	0 0	8	0 0	18	0 0
If they have exceeded the age of 40, but not that of 50 years	7	10 0	6	0 0	13	10 0
If they have exceeded the age of 50 years	5	0 0	4	0 0	9	0 0

The charges were reduced to these figures shortly before the war, and are about the only charge in England that has not since been put up. It really is not a large life-subscription to the oldest Club in the country.

We are going to Press just too soon to include an account of the Old Members' Dinner, which is to be held on April 20th. The experiment of running a dinner on the lines of the ordinary Old School Dinner seems likely to prove a great success. Any former member can attend, and he pays for his ticket. It is clear that there will be at least 100 present on the 20th (as many as there is really room for), including a strong contingent from the Head of the River VIII, who will celebrate the fortieth anniversary of their triumph. Those who attend the dinner will be asked how often they would like such a dinner to be held. If, as we hope and as seems probable, it becomes a fixture, those who know of it are asked to bring it to the notice of those who do not, for there are still many old members of the College whose addresses cannot be traced.

We hope that our readers, especially some of the older ones, will help us by sending us information about themselves and their contemporaries, e.g. new appointments, honours, publications, marriages and deaths. We are fully conscious of the shortcomings of the notes which follow, which were originally intended to give a fairly full account of what has happened to our old members during the last year, and a summary of the chief happenings during the years since 1914. The figures in brackets after the names denote the year of matriculation. In the case of Fellows who came to Hertford from another College, no date is inserted.

We call the attention of any old members who are still cricketers to the statement about a 'past and present' cricket tour in our athletic notes.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. EDWARD LIDDELL BALMER, who died at Nestledown, Boscombe, on November 23rd, 1919, aged 78, was a Lusby Scholar of Magdalen Hall. He took two Firsts in Mathematics as well as a Second in Classical Mods., and the Johnson Mathematical Scholarship. He was Fellow of Hertford from '75 to '88, and was Dean in the palmy days when the College was Head of the River.

ARTHUR FRANCIS BELL came to Hertford as a Classical Exhibitor in '08. He was considerably above the average age and had always suffered from extremely bad health. He took a First in Mods. and a Second in the Final School of English Literature. He remained in Oxford for some time, teaching English. He was a really fine poet and a man of great intellectual ability who fought a gallant fight against heavy odds. Considering his age and ill-health he made for himself a unique position in the social life of the College, and will be much regretted by those who were up from '08 to '12.

HENRY GEORGE BOCKETT-PUGH, of 5 Osborne Road, Clifton, died after an operation, on January 26th, 1920, in his 50th year. He was an M.A. of the College and took considerable interest in the earlier numbers of this Magazine.

THE REV. CLEMENT LARCOM BURROWS, Vicar of St. Paul's, Bournemouth, died on February 17th, 1915, aged 57. He was a Commoner of Hertford from

'79 to '82. He presented to Wycliff Hall its new Dining Hall, which for that reason contains the Hertford Arms in its window.

THE REV. WILLIAM WOLFE CAPES, Canon of Hereford and at one time Reader in Ancient History at Oxford, was Fellow and Lecturer of Hertford from '76 to '86. He was also for some time Bursar. He had previously been Fellow and Tutor of Queen's, of which College he was made, in 1902, an Honorary Fellow.

THOMAS ADDISON CHATER died on June 16th, 1919. He came to Hertford from Christ's Hospital in /77 as Lusby Scholar, and took a Second in Mods. and Third in Greats. He was for 14 years a Master at St. Paul's, and afterwards Headmaster of High Croft Preparatory School.

THE RIGHT REV. ALFRED EARLE, Bishop of Marlborough, was also a Lusby Scholar (of Magdalen Hall). He took his M.A. in '55, and was made an Honorary D.D. in '88. He was Prebendary of Exeter from '72 to '85, and Archdeacon of Totnes from '72 to '88. He wrote a number of works on Church Reform.

RONALD GALE came from Tonbridge in '11, and took his B.A. in '14. Ill-health, from which he had always suffered, prevented his joining the Army and he died after the war had run a few months. He was made a Bible Clerk at Hertford and was preparing for Ordination at the time of his death.

THE REV. CHARLES GEORGE GULL, who died in February, 1918, had been Rector of Litlington, in Sussex, since '13. Matriculating at Magdalen Hall, he took his B.A. from Hertford in '75. For 23 years he was Headmaster of the Grocers' Company School.

SIDNEY GRAVES HAMILTON, Librarian and formerly Fellow, died at Malvern, on August 20th, 1916, after a long illness. Aged 61. Both at Harrow and Balliol he was one of the most brilliant writers of Greek and Latin of his day. Without any apparent effort he became Hertford Scholar and won the Latin Verse and Greek Prose, and took a First in Mods. and a Second in Greats. In '78 he became Fellow of Hertford and continued to be Fellow till his marriage, in '06. He never acted as tutor, but until his last illness he constantly lived in College for short periods in the rooms opposite the S.C.R., and remained Librarian until his death. All but the very latest generation at Hertford knew him well by sight, but none outside the S.C.R. knew him intimately. There, his charm and his wealth of information made him the most delightful companion, and his incalculable arrivals were as welcome as his sudden departures were deplored. How he acquired his vast store of information was a puzzle. He never seemed to do anything energetically and yet he got through a great deal in his life. At Hertford, he knew every book in the Library (whose removal he twice had to superintend). His 'History of Hertford' is one of the most scholarly in the series. He also wrote a monograph on Dr. Newton and Hertford College. Outside, he was a J.P. for Gloucester, Churchwarden at Mickleton, and Chairman or Member of many local bodies. He had travelled, especially in the Balkans. It was not easy to get him to talk, but when he did, humour and information were very pleasantly blended. For some years his health had been failing.

HUGH HARE came to Hertford as a Scholar in '78. He won the Abbot Scholarship in the following year and took a Second in Mods. in '80. He became a Schoolmaster and was for some years at St. Edward's School, Oxford.

SIR WILLIAM HERSCHEL, who died at Warfield, Berks, on October 24th, 1917, at the age of 84, was for some time Theological Lecturer at Hertford. His was the unique achievement of coming up to Oxford after retiring from the I.C.S. and obtaining a First in his Final School (Theology). He was an M.A. of the Non-Collegiate body.

THE REV. GEORGE HERBERT KING came from Repton in '08. He took a Fourth in Theology, and became an M.A. in '15. Many of our readers will remember the excellent photographs which he took for this Magazine.

CHARLES HARFORD LLOYD, Mus. Doc., died at Slough, on October 16th, 1919, aged 70. He was then Organist at His Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James' Palace, and had been Organist of Christ Church and Precentor of Eton.

A Scholar of Magdalen Hall, he was the most distinguished musician this College has yet produced. He remained a loyal member of Hertford and was particularly devoted to its new Chapel and Organ.

HARBIN ALLENBET LOWE, who died of consumption, on January 31st, 1915, came to England as Barbados Scholar, and won a scholarship at Hertford in '09. He took a First in Mods., but Lit. Hum. did not suit him and he only took a Third. Subsequently he studied Law.

PHILIP MOLYNEUX matriculated as a Non-Collegiate Student and migrated to Hertford in '75. He took his M.A. in '80. He was well-known in Oxford as Editor of the University Gazette. This work he carried out with great devotion and success.

MONTAGUE JOHNSTONE MUIR MACKENZIE, who died in April, 1919, was nominated a Fellow of Hertford by Mr. Baring in the first year of the New Foundation. He remained a Fellow for 15 years, but was never a resident.

JOHN SHANNON MUNN, who matriculated at Hertford in '99, was lost at sea, on February 24th, 1918.

HERBERT CHARLES NAPIER, who died in 1918, came to Hertford as a Scholar, from Magdalen College School in '02. He obtained Firsts in Math. Mods., and Finals, and in Natural Science. For a time he was instructor at the R.M.A., Woolwich. He was a most able entomologist.

ALGERNON WILLOUGHBY OSBORNE, who died in a nursing home, at Cambridge, on March 20th, 1915, came from Winchester in '83 and took his B.A., with a Second in Law, in '87. He became Attorney General of the Gold Coast in '03, and Chief Justice of Southern Nigeria five years later.

CLARENCE FREEMAN PECKETT came as a Commoner from Clifton in '12, and obtained a Second in Law in '15. Though he was very popular with the men he knew, a weak heart prevented him from taking a very active part in College life, and from joining the Army. He took his B.A. in '15.

JOHN YOUNG SARGENT died in Oxford, on March 21st, 1915. As an Undergraduate at Merton, he was one of the most distinguished classical scholars of his generation. After some years spent at coaching, he became a Fellow of Magdalen, from '63 to '71, and '73 to '77. In '77 he was appointed Fellow of Hertford, and held that Fellowship till his death. He resided in Hertford, as Tutor, from '77 to '89, when he went to live at Sella Park, Cumberland. He was the father-in-law of three of the Fellows of Hertford—Mr. Poynton (now at Univ.), Mr. Haselfoot and the Bishop of Carlisle. He wrote a number of works on Norwegian and Classical subjects, the best known of which was 'Sargent and Dallin,' which so many of us used at School. He travelled with the Principal in America.

THE REV. HENRY ARTHUR DILLON SURRIDGE, M.A., who died on June 22nd, 1916, was a Scholar of Magdalen Hall and took his B.A. with two Seconds in Classics, in '59. He became Vicar of High Leigh, Cheshire, in '84. In '96 he wrote, 'Cyrus, a Tale of the Ten Thousand.'

THE REV. EDMUND LAWRENCE HEMPSTED TEW, Rector of Upham, died at the age of 69, on January 4th, 1915. A member of Magdalen Hall, as his father had been before him, he became a most loyal M.A. of Hertford. In most summers he spent a short week in Oxford, when he was always full of reminiscences. He constantly contributed notes on Magdalen Hall men to this Magazine. His son, M. L. Tew, was a prominent member of Hertford, and is now in Nigeria.

GEORGE LINDSAY WILSON died at Melbourne, Australia, on February 20th. He came to Hertford in '87, and represented Oxford against Cambridge, at cricket, in '90 and '91.
