THE
HERTFORD COLLEGE MAGAZINE

APRIL, 1922. No. 11.

CONTENTS:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CONTENTS</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>DR. HENRY BOYD</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COLLEGE NOTES</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>JOHN DONNE OF HART HALL (1584—1587)</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>THE ROYAL COMMISSION</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE NEWS</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COLLEGE CLUBS AND SOCIETIES</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ATHLETIC CLUBS</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NEWS OF PAST MEMBERS</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>THE COLLEGE MAGAZINE</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ADDRESSES OF SUBSCRIBERS</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

DR. HENRY BOYD.

THE Principal returned from Cornwall in January, travelling by himself as far as Paddington. But his holiday had not rejuvenated him as it usually did, and after a few days he developed influenza. This he threw off with surprising rapidity and was soon regularly in Chapel and entertaining undergraduates to breakfast and lunch. But he became ill again, and though his wonderful constitution enabled him to rally several times, his condition was really desperate for a week before he died. He had some pain in his last illness, but his end was very peaceful. He died in his College, where he was active practically up to the end, and this is what he would have wished.

It is at present quite impossible to picture Hertford without its Principal. Few men have ruled Colleges for so long; fewer still have been able to maintain throughout so long a reign personal contact with all the members of their society. Even the present Freshmen of Hertford feel that they have lost a friend as well as a Principal.

It is not proposed here to attempt to write a full biography.
There can be few of our readers who have not heard a great deal of it from the Principal's own lips at those happy breakfasts and lunches when, always with a twinkle in his eye, he would speak of his work in East London and of his travels, blooding tales of church-building at the docks with recollections of the Maid of Athens. His memory of countries in which he travelled nearly seventy years ago was extraordinarily accurate, for his artist's eye had fixed impressions which an ordinary traveller would long have forgotten. In recent years he was more willing than of old to talk about his early days at Hertford and the great difficulties he had to encounter through opposition without and lack of tradition and equipment within. Especially he loved to dwell on the building operations which will always be the great outward memorial of his Principalship. For if few men have ruled a College so long, surely none in the whole history of the University can have ruled for a period in which so much College history was made.

The appreciations of the Principal which appeared in the newspapers at the time of his death gave adequate accounts of the main features of his life, but they were silent about the last years of it, which were perhaps the most remarkable of all. The outbreak of war found him, for the last time, in Norway. He had always had deep suspicions of the Kaiser, whose bombastic progressions along the Norwegian coast he resented, and the war was no great surprise to him; but he was determined to get back to England. The ordinary boats did not run, and so at the age of eighty-three he insisted on crossing in a small trading ship a North Sea whose minefields were as yet uncharted. He hated the war: the ordinary routine of College life which meant so much to a man of his age was completely broken. The College soon became full of strange officers and cadets. There were few visitors to his house, and he did not dine in a Hall full of strange faces. But much more than this he was cut to the quick every time the news arrived of the death of a Hertford man. 'The men we lost were friends,' as he said in his speech last year. Many will remember the moving sentences which he sent to all members of the College who were serving at the war as a preface to an early edition of the Roll of Service. At this time he found his consolation in the College Chapel, which to him came to seem more and more the embodiment of College life. Services were maintained throughout the war, and he himself acted as Chaplain.
But he was always optimistic and determined to see the war through. We all felt sure that he would survive it, and the Armistice gave him a new vigour. But he found it hard to take up again work which had been so long suspended, for he had reached an age when habits are not easily resumed. He knew this and often spoke of it; he would never, for instance, use a carriage for fear of losing the habit of walking. After the war he only felt able to dine in Hall on special occasions, and there were no more of those games of whist for which our Senior Common Room had been famous. He had never enjoyed meetings, and it was rather a disappointment to him to find that the College could not resume its old life without a good deal of rather tedious deliberation. ‘If only I were thirty years younger,’ he often used to say. (He liked to speak of sexagenarians as ‘young men.’)

But he suffered no real loss of strength. He was constantly engaged with the Chapel and with entertaining. At the famous Encaenia of 1919 he led the procession of Doctors with great dignity, and only last Eights’ Week he was on the College Barge. He could still make astounding efforts when there was the least demand for them. At the time of the railway strike he motored from the Lizard to Oxford in two days so as to get back to his place of duty. At the War Memorial Service he delivered a most striking address (he had given what he intended to be his last sermon at the first service in the new Chapel in 1908). At the Old Members’ Dinner last April he spoke for nearly half-an-hour, and as lately as last November he presided and spoke at the Freshmen’s Dinner. This, his last public speech, was extraordinarily moving in its simple sincerity.

He will long be remembered by many people and for many good reasons. His College was his first interest, but he did much for the University. But for him the Drapers’ Company would hardly have made their munificent contributions to University buildings, while his Vice-Chancellorship was a model of commonsense and good temper. He held it for the full four years and was the last to maintain the old traditions of entertaining. He was, indeed, in many ways the last of a fine old school and a many-sided sportsman such as this age of organised athletics will seldom produce.

It is unnecessary to try to enumerate all his services to his College. Hertford owes to his generosity, his taste and his quiet determination and patience nearly all its buildings. But we owe much more than these to his personal influence and his gifts of heart and character. These won recognition for the College and gave it unity and ideals. He never schemed, he disliked dialectic and controversy. Opposition was broken down by his cheery optimism, his absolute unselfishness and that beautifully simple Christian faith which enabled him, careless of personal comfort, to live up to the end, alone in his rather lonely house, a life of perfect contentment. No one ever spoke ill of him and he, though a remarkably shrewd judge of men, was unfair to no one.

Such was the man whom Hertford was lucky enough to obtain as its Principal in the third year of its new existence and to retain for nearly half a century. Mr. Baring's munificent endowments guaranteed to the College a succession of intellectually distinguished Fellows and Scholars: the Principal has won it a position which success and efficiency could never have attained alone. A certain distrust of the new Foundation melted away in the affection which was universally felt for its Head and in time the very venerability of the Principal made men forget the youth of his College. In the College itself, of which he always liked to think and speak as one large family, affection for him at first took the place of the traditions which mean so much to older societies and the traditions which are now firmly established have been formed by his influence and the affection which he has inspired.

The funeral took place on March 8th. The first part of the service was held in the College Chapel and was conducted by the Chaplain and by the Principal's nephew, the Rev. W. G. Boyd. The choir was present and Mr. Allchin was at the organ. It was just the service that the Principal would have liked—simple and not gloomy. The rendering of the final Nunc Dimittus was extremely beautiful.

After the service a procession was formed and joined by members of the University who had attended the service held simultaneously in the University Church. The procession went on foot to Holywell Cemetery where the Bishop of Carlisle read the committal sentences.

The six senior College servants wheeled the coffin and among many others there were wreaths from the Vice-Principal and Fellow, the J.C.R., the servants, Hertford men in the Civil Service, Rev. J. H. N. Taylor, A. H. J. Cochrane, Dr. Cowley, Mr. James Cattle (the Principal's oldest servant who has since died) and Mr. and Mrs. Prior (who looked after him so faithfully in his latter years).

Those present in the College Chapel included the Rev. W. G. Boyd (nephew), the Rev. B. J. Scott (great nephew) and other family mourners; the Master and other representatives of the Drapers' Company, the Vice-Chancellor, the Vice-Principal and Fellows (Mr. C. N. Jackson being represented by Mrs. Jackson); the Bishop of Carlisle, the Dean of St. Paul's and the Principal of Birmingham University (Hon. Fellows); the Rev. G. C. Richards, A. B. Poynton and W. R. Buchanan-Riddell (ex-Fellows); Sir Thomas Jackson (Architect of the Chapel), B. C. Allchin, Dr. Holdsworth, the Rev. F. E. Hutchinson, Dr. Cowley, Rev. S. C. F. Angel Smith, C. G. Lynn, E. Buck, H. W. Disney, W. Dawson, Rev. R. C. Guy, G. R. Brewis, T. A. White, L. S. S. O'Malley, A. J. Jenkins, Prof. H. C. E. Phoebus, C. D. McIver, Rev. E. S. Mitchison, Rev. H. B. Godlog, Rev. I. Hodgson, Rev. G. W. Russell, P. C. O. Edwell, W. E. Charles, H. M. D. Parker, the undergraduates of the College and the servants of the College.

The portrait of the Principal which will be found in this number has been made by the Clarendon Press from a snapshot by J. T. Camplin.
much more than these to his personal influence and his gifts of heart and character. These won recognition for the College and gave it unity and ideals. He never schemes, he disliked dialectic and controversy. Opposition was broken down by his cheery optimism, his absolute unselfishness and that beautifully simple Christian faith which enabled him, careless of personal comfort, to live up to the end, alone in his rather lonely house, a life of perfect contentment. No one ever spoke ill of him and he, through a remarkably shrewd judge of men, was unfair to no one.

Such was the man whom Hertford was lucky enough to obtain as its Principal in the third year of its new existence and to retain for nearly half a century. Mr. Baring's magnificent endowments guaranteed to the College a succession of intellectually distinguished Fellows and Scholars; the Principal has won it a position which success and efficiency could never have attained alone. A certain distrust of the new Foundation melted away in the affection which was universally felt for its Head and in the time the very venerability of the Principal made men forget the youth of his College. In the College itself, of which he always liked to think and speak as one large family, affection for him at first took the place of the traditions which mean so much to older societies and the traditions which are now firmly established have been formed by his influence and the affection which he has inspired.

The funeral took place on March 8th. The first part of the service was held in the College Chapel and was conducted by the Chaplain and by the Principal's nephew, the Rev. W. G. Boyd. The choir was present and Mr. Allchin was at the organ.

It was just the service that the Principal would have liked—simple and not gloomy. The rendering of the final Nunc Dimittas was extremely beautiful.

After the service a procession was formed and joined by members of the University who had attended the service held simultaneously in the University Church. The procession went on foot to Holywell Cemetery where the Bishop of Carlisle read the committal sentences.

The six senior College servants wheeled the coffin and among many others there were wreaths from the Vice-Principal and Fellows, the J.C.R., the servants, Hertford men in the Civil Service, Rev. J. H. N. Taylor, A. H. J. Cochrane, Dr. Cowley, Mr. James Cattle (the Principal's oldest servant who has since died) and Mr. and Mrs. Prior (who looked after him so faithfully in his latter years).

Those present in the College Chapel included the Rev. W. G. Boyd (nephew), the Rev. B. J. Scott (great nephew) and other family mourners; the Master and other representatives of the Drapers' Company, the Vice-Chancellor, the Vice-Principal and Fellows (Mr. C. N. Jackson being represented by Mrs. Jackson); the Bishop of Carlisle, the Dean of St. Paul's and the Principal of Birmingham University (Hon. Fellows); the Rev. G. C. Richards, A. B. Poyntot and W. R. Buchanan-Riddell (ex-Fellows); Sir Thomas Jackson (Architect of the Chapel), R. C. Allchin, Dr. Houldsworth, the Rev. F. E. Hutchinson, Dr. Cowley, Rev. S. C. F. Angel Smith, C. C. Lynam, E. Buck, H. W. Disney, W. Dawson, Rev. R. C. Guy, G. R. Brewis, T. A. White, L. S. S. O'Malley, A. J. Jenkins, Proff. H. C. Pummer, C. D. McIver, Rev. R. S. Mitchison, Rev. H. B. Gooding, Rev. L. Hodgson, Rev. G. W. Russell, P. C. O. Riddell, W. E. Charles, H. M. D. Parker, the undergraduates of the College and the servants of the College.

The portrait of the Principal which will be found in this number has been made by the Clarendon Press from a snapshot by J. T. Campion.

COLLEGE NOTES.

In many ways the uniqueness of the post-war Oxford has decreased during the past year. Nearly all our Freshmen of last October came up from School. The hazardous creation of 1919, the Shortened Course, has almost vanished. Though several new channels have been cut it is now more nearly the same river which fills them, as ran before the war. Although the difference between Oxford to-day and Oxford eight years ago is still in some quarters presented as if a metamorphosis had taken place, which renders the present generation foreign and incomprehensible to its predecessors, one is not inclined to view that opinion as being free from the over-anxious desire to assert and demonstrate maturity at all costs. That this opinion will disappear is not to be expected; that it is peculiar to its own generation, every generation is bound to believe.
The illustration of the New Buildings shows the increase in the size of the Quad, produced by the removal of the Holywell Press. The rambling houses on Holywell, of which the backs can be seen in the centre of the photograph, have been turned into College rooms until such time as the building can be continued and the new front on Holywell erected.

The photograph is by K. J. Franklin.

The experiment was tried at the beginning of the October Term of having a dinner followed by a smoking concert. The object of this was mainly to help the Freshmen to know each other and those who were already up.

It was in every way successful and it is hoped that the same will be done next year. We were particularly glad and grateful that the Principal was able to be present.

The Rev. Canon E. A. Burroughs has now left both Trinity and Peterborough. Towards the end of the Michaelmas Term he accepted the appointment to the Deanery of Bristol, and he was formally installed on April 1st. Though he is now separated by two appointments from direct connection with Hertford his interest in the College remains, and our good wishes are with him wherever he happens to be.

In the October Term an International Assembly of the Oxford League of Nations' Union was established, mainly owing to the energies of J. W. Parkes, General Secretary of the L.N.U. in the University, for the purpose of creating more intimate relations between members of different nations at Oxford, and for discussing questions of International politics. Parkes has also started several discussion groups in the University for dealing with these International questions in more detail. The work of the Assembly, which has met regularly throughout last Term and the present one, is better known than to require further description here.

It has been decided to hold a dance in Eights' Week this summer. The Hall will accommodate a hundred couples, and although, being in Term time, the dance will have to end at 12 o'clock, there is no reason why we should not fill the Hall from among our own members and their guests seeing that there was practically a unanimous vote in favour of the dance.
For example, an illustration could be created to depict the concept of a data model. The illustration should include visual representations of the various components of the data model, such as tables, relationships, and attributes. This can be achieved using tools like Adobe Illustrator or Inkscape, which offer a range of features for creating detailed and accurate illustrations.

The illustration should also include labels and annotations to explain the different elements of the data model. This can help clarify any complex relationships or associations between the various components.

Finally, the illustration should be well-organized and easy to read. It should avoid overcrowding or cluttering the image with too much information, which can make it difficult for the reader to understand the concept being depicted.

In conclusion, creating an effective illustration for the data model requires careful planning and execution. By following the guidelines outlined above, you can create a clear and informative visual representation of the data model that will enhance the reader's understanding of the concept.
Twice during the year Hertford has lost its Senior Fellow. Canon Jeans died in August, and Mr. Lockhart in January. Short notices of them appear elsewhere. A large number of Fellowships are now vacant, and some of them will no doubt be filled as soon as there has been time to digest the rather elaborate recommendations about Fellowships put forward by the Royal Commissioners.

Our record in the Schools during the year has not been sensational, but so far we have had since the war comparatively few candidates. We look forward with some confidence to a progressive improvement. [Since we wrote these words it has started.]

We wish to thank Dr. R. H. Todd, now of Sydney, for presenting to the College the oar with which he rowed Bow in the famous Eight of 1881. The oar has been hung in the J.C.R., and we hope it will prove an inspiration.

The election of C. Grant Robertson, Principal of Birmingham University, to an Honorary Fellowship of the College deserves a special note. He is not only our first Head of one of the new Universities, but is, as far as we can discover, the first Honorary Fellow of Hertford who had been one of our own undergraduates. Elsewhere we give our usual record of the doings of our old members during the year. Especially interesting are the appointment of Sir James Masterton Smith to take charge of the Colonial Office (which is becoming more and more a Hertford concern), G. L. Corbett's participation in the Washington Conference, and the election to Parliament of A. T. Loyd, our last (and only) President of the U.D.S. C. E. V. Bean's first volume of the Australian History of the War is the most unique Hertford publication of the year. The author, according to one reviewer, will be known as the Herodotus of Australia.

In our last number we hinted at the possibility of the College acquiring its own sports' ground. Considerable progress has been made with the scheme, and permission to make a small alteration in a right of way is all that is now wanted before the purchase is completed. The ground is on the left as one follows the path from the Mesopotamia Ferry to the Marston Road, and adjoins the Wadham ground. Though not so far away as some college grounds, it is rather difficult of access; otherwise, it promises to be most satisfactory. It remained remarkably dry during the recent wet weather, and the levelling required is of a comparatively simple nature. In summer, at any rate, it will be an extremely pretty ground.

The "Feeding of Schoolboys" controversy left the Universities alone, rather to some people's surprise, but "What to do with our sons" concerns us very nearly. At the present time many undergraduates do not find it easy to obtain suitable employment.
It is to be hoped that India will recover its popularity, and that the National Education Service will come to be more and more regarded as offering a suitable career for Oxford men; but openings of all kinds are wanted, and we hope that those of our readers who are business men in search of bright young men will remember that we have probably got just the article they want.

Elsewhere we give a list of the Scholars and Exhibitioners elected last December. The examination was the first in a new series. The rather unseemly scramble which has for some years taken place among the various groups of Colleges in their efforts to secure the best scholars has given way after much discussion to a more orderly system under which three groups of Colleges agree to accept a scheme of rotation, taking turns to examine first, second and third. All the Colleges have come in except Pembroke, whose statutes make it impossible, and Corpus. Hertford forms a group with University, Exeter, Queen's, New College, and Worcester. Our group was lucky enough to draw the first place this year, and for the next two years will have to take a hinder place.

JOHN DONNE, OF HART HALL (1584-1587),
A GLOOMY DEAN.

John Donne was born in 1573 and died on March 31st, 1631.
He lived through a crowded scene in English History. According to Walton, his biographer, he wrote nearly all his poetry before he was twenty. Then, late in life he took Holy Orders and became easily the greatest preacher of his day. But Donne's greatness does not lie in his versatility, but in the scope of his power of influence over others. His poems, though never printed in his lifetime, founded the 'Metaphysical School.' His sermons drew huge crowds. His friends— among them even the king—seemed to make no difference— included Sir Henry Wotton, George Hert-bert, and Isaac Walton.

Walton's biography of Donne, is acknowledged by everyone from Mr. Hales of Eaton to Mr. Pearsall Smith as being a masterpiece of sympathetic writing. George Herbert was his most intimate friend, and one cannot help thinking that the poem called after the manner Donne made fashionable, 'The Pulley,' was written with John Donne in his mind. For restlessness is the keynote of his later life.

Sir Henry Wotton—the author of a rare poem on Princess Elizabeth of Bohemia, and of a famous letter of encouragement to the youthful Milton—first met Donne, when he was eleven years of age as a 'freshman' at Hart Hall— "a popular College in that time.'

In the year 1584 there appears the following entry in the University Register—
Donne John Lond. Gen. f.11.
Richard Baker, the Chronicler, was matriculated the same day, also at Hart Hall.
The 'London generall bulwark' is explained by the fact that his father was a very well-to-do ironmonger in the City of London. (Perhaps the fact that Isaac Walton's father also was an ironmonger in Fleet Street, accounts for their friendship.)
His mother was a Roman Catholic whose ancestors had nearly all suffered for the sake of conscience.
Her sons were brought up strictly in the Roman faith, and this accounts for the early age of their matriculation at Hart Hall.

In 1587, Parsons and Tشنop had come to England as the accredited agents of the Society of Jesus, and Oxford was in fear of her undergraduates being proselytized, as indeed we know several were at Cambridge. Hence, all undergraduates over sixteen years of age had, on matriculation, to take the oath of supremacy. This is why the Donne brothers came up at an eyarly age—even for that time.
before he was twenty. Then, late in life he took Holy Orders and became easily the greatest preacher of his day. But Donne's greatness does not lie in his versatility, but in the secret of his power of influence over others. His poems, though never printed in his lifetime, founded the 'Metaphysical School.' His sermons drew huge crowds. His friends—and his sensual verses, seemed to make no difference—included Sir Henry Wotton, George Herbert, and Isaak Walton.

Walton's biography of Donne, is acknowledged by everyone from Mr. Hales of Eaton to Mr. Pearsall Smith as being a masterpiece of sympathetic writing. George Herbert was his most intimate friend, and one cannot help thinking that the poem called after the manner Donne made fashionable, 'The Pulley,' was written with John Donne in his mind. For restlessness is the keynote of his later life.

Sir Henry Wotton—the author of a rare poem on Princess Elizabeth of Bohemia, and of a famous letter of encouragement to the youthful Milton—first met Donne, when he was eleven years of age as a freshman at Hart Hall—a popular College in that time.'

In the year 1584 there appears the following entry in the University Register:

20th October. HART HALL. Dunne Henry Lond. Gen. f.10.
Dunne John Lond. Gen. f.11.
Richard Baker, the Chronicler, was matriculated the same day, also at Hart Hall.

The 'Londinii generosi filii' is explained by the fact that his father was a very well-to-do ironmonger in the City of London. (Perhaps the fact that Isaak Walton's father also was an ironmonger in Fleet Street, accounts for their friendship.) His mother was a Roman Catholic whose ancestors had nearly all suffered for the sake of conscience.

Her sons were brought up strictly in the Roman faith, and this accounts for the early age of their matriculation at Hart Hall.

In 1581, Parsons and Campion had come to England as the accredited agents of the Society of Jesus, and Oxford was in fear of her undergraduates being proselytized, as indeed we know several were at Cambridge. Hence, all undergraduates over sixteen years of age had, on matriculation, to take the oath of supremacy. This is why the Donne brothers came up at an early age—even for that time.
In Hart Hall they continued for about three years, in which time Sir Henry Wotton had a chamber there. Wotton was lecturing at Queen's College and so had rooms in Hart Hall close by. The importance of Donne meeting a man like Wotton at that early age can hardly be overestimated.

Donne, after three years, did not take his B.A. degree. According to Antony Wood and Walton, about fourteen years of age Donne was translated from Oxford to Cambridge. Wood goes as far as to say Trinity College, but Dr. Jessop in the D.N.B., says there is no authority for this statement and that Donne most likely spent that time in travelling through Europe. In 1591, he was reading at Thames' Inn (a sort of preparatory to Lincoln's Inn) with his brother, and thence went to Lincoln's Inn. His brother, soon after John had left him, was caught sheltering a suspected priest. The priest was hanged at Tyburn, and Henry languished a few weeks in prison and then died in the Clink.

Five years later Donne sailed together with many other eager volunteers on the Earl of Essex's expedition to Cadiz. Donne had by this time a great reputation as a poet among his friends. It was the age of 'wit' and 'parts,' and John Donne combined these with a grace of character that compelled affection.

On the same ship sailing to Cadiz was the son of Sir Thomas Egerton, the Keeper of the Great Seal. He and Donne became friends, and on their return three months later, Donne became Egerton's secretary. While staying in his house he met the daughter of Lady Egerton's brother, and married her secretly. Her father was furious and though afterwards he forgave Donne, Sir Thomas refused to reinstate him, and Donne started married life under the most difficult of circumstances. He had seven children; one of his daughters, Constance, eventually married Edmund Alleyn, the founder of Dulwich College.

Donne married in 1600, and the next ten years of his life were spent in comparative obscurity near London. He seems to have retained always the patronage of the Duchess of Bedford, and under her roof his fame spread. From his first meeting with James I, the king (who prided himself on his discernment in such matters) earmarked him for the priesthood.

In October, 1610, the University of Oxford conferred the M.A. degree on Donne by decree of Convocation: 'Causa est quod haec academia maximo ornamento, sit ut eiusmodi vir optimo de rebus et Ecclesia meriti gradibus academicis insigni.'

Donne still remained obstinate about taking Holy Orders, though it was the obvious course for him to take. In 1614, he gave way to James I's persuasion and became Chaplain to the King. In 1615, a long sought for preferment came when he was appointed Dean of St. Paul's.

Donne was a born Dean of St. Paul's. In addition to his immense reading and vivid imagination he took to his new appointment the 'graceful courage of a soldier.' He became a kind of spokesman for people who did not usually face facts.

Walton tells us that his sermons at St. Paul's were listened to with wrapt attention by immense crowds. He gives as the reason for this that Donne appeared to preach as a voice from heaven, to himself as well as to his congregation.

All the experience of his former life he employed and translated to his new position.

His sermons are on the realities of life, about which he spoke with the authority of a fellow sufferer. He preaches on such varied topics—on ladies using cosmetics, to the Virginian Company on its departure—on the tremendous difficulties of concentrating in public worship, on the spirit of reason and on the gruesome details of the death of the body.

As Donne grew older a sort of morbid attraction for the grave, perhaps born of fear, seemed to seize him. Donne's patience for his early life was not as with some religious people, for wholly imaginary sins. He seems, from the 'Hymn to God the Father,' written three years before his death, to have had one long struggle between the Soul and Body. It accounts for the 'restlessness' of his sermons—and also for his large audiences.

He preached his last sermon on Ash Wednesday, in 1631, and Walton says he preached it as if it were his own funeral sermon.

When on his deathbed he had his effigy made to be clothed in a shroud and placed in a coffin by his bedside, and it is this curious monument—saved from the Great Fire—that still remains in the Dean's corner of St. Paul's. Antony Wood mentions another likeness to Donne, very different: 'A very small head of Donne—in armour, with a sword, etc., as equipped for the Cales voyage; with eight verses by Isaac Walton.' There is an excellent portrait of him, probably as Egerton's secretary, in the National Portrait Gallery ('by or after Oliver').
Donne still remained obstinate about taking Holy Orders; though it was the obvious course for him to take. In 1614, he gave way to James I's persuasion and became Chaplain to the King. In 1621, a long sought for preferment came when he was appointed Dean of St. Paul's. Donne was a born Dean of St. Paul's. In addition to his immense reading and vivid imagination he took to his new appointment the 'graceful courage of a soldier.' He became a kind of spokesman for people who did not usually face facts.

Walton tells us that his sermons at St. Paul's were listened to with wrapt attention by immense crowds. He gives as the reason for this that Donne appeared to preach as a voice from heaven, to himself as well as to his congregation. All the experience of his former life he employed and transmuted to his new passion.

His sermons are on the realities of life, about which he spoke with the authority of a fellow sufferer. He preaches on such varied topics—on ladies using cosmetics, to the Virginian Company on its departure—on the tremendous difficulties of concentrating in public worship, on the spirit of treason and on the gruesome details of the death of the body. As Donne grew older a sort of morbid attraction for the grave, perhaps born of fear, seemed to seize him. Donne's penitence for his early life was not as with some religious people, for wholly imaginary sins. He seems, from the Hymn to God the Father, written three years before his death, to have had one long struggle between the Soul and Body. It accounts for the restlessness of his sermons—and also for his large audiences.

He preached his last sermon on Ash Wednesday, in 1631, and Walton says he preached it as if it were his own funeral sermon.

When on his deathbed he had his effigy made to be clothed in a shroud and placed in a coffin by his bedside, and it is this curious monument—saved from the Great Fire—that still remains in the Dean's corner of St. Paul's. Antony A Wood mentions another likeness to Donne, very different. 'A very small head of Donne—in armour, with a sword, etc., as equipped for the Cales voyage; with eight verses by Isaac Walton.' There is an excellent portrait of him, probably as Egerton's secretary, in the National Portrait Gallery ('by or after Oliver').
He paid his last debt to nature on the last day of March, 1631, and was buried in the S. isle behind the Choir of the cath. ch. of St. Paul near to the monument of Dr. Jo. Colet."

Isaak Walton's short biography of Donne was printed in 1653. It is a great piece of work. Extracts of Donne's sermons were edited by Mr. Pearsall Smith and published a short while ago with a very good introduction.

In the sermons we can see the two pictures of Donne—the young poet in armour equipped for the wars, and the sepulchral effigy that makes such an impressive frontispiece to Mr. Pearsall Smith's book.

This short sketch of Donne was written (without any excuse) in a hurry, but Isaak Walton's life (with the lives of two other of Donne's friends) and Mr. Pearsall Smith's book have been sent to the College Library as a forfeit.

One thing more, Donne always, himself, pronounced his name to rhyme with 'gun' and not with 'gone'; he is not, alas! above making puns with his name and the past principle of the verb 'to do.' I have done. Ugh!

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

If the object in appointing a Royal Commission on Oxford and Cambridge was to enable Parliament to grant money to these ancient academies without undue twinges of conscience, the Commissioners may be said to have done their work well. The first result of their labours is a Blue Book of surprising literary charm, which shows the Universities in a very favourable light.

If, on the other hand, Parliament wants to know exactly what changes are needed, it may justly complain that the Commissioners have talked a lot, repeated themselves frequently, and raised a large number of issues, but are singularly indefinite, and, as it seems to us, self-contradictory when it comes to definite recommendations. Now and then we seem to get something definite. 'Licensed Houses,' they say in their discussion on College Estates, 'might be disposed of with advantage.' But no! they feel that this is too sweeping, and go on, 'except where there is a particular reason for their retention.' What reasons do they foresee, we wonder? Professors must be paid more; that is a statement which they do not qualify at all. But when it comes to recommending an actual figure, they recommend one which, after Income Tax has been deducted, as they say it should be, will leave a number of professors, if our mathematicians are right, worse off than they are to-day. As they also recommended that professors should give all their time to their professorial duties, the Commissioners may find this part of their report less popular than they expect.

But on the whole such definite recommendations as are made about the University are reasonable, and some of them can be fairly easily carried out. It is when it gets on to the Colleges that the Blue Book begins to become rather difficult. Here the discussion and recommendations may be briefly summarised as follows:

(i) The staffs of Colleges are greatly underpaid. They should be paid better, and pension funds should be universal.

(ii) Many of the Colleges are very short of funds.

(iii) The Colleges should increase the number of their Fellows and teachers.

(iv) They should make more provision for research.

(v) They must pay more to the University.

(vi) They should make more provision for the undergraduates.

(vii) They should not receive any grant from the Government.

[None of them expected, as far as we know, none of them asked for any.]

... have worked very hard in the past, especially during and after the War. This is not really very helpful. One cannot help thinking that the object of the Commissioners has really been to justify the existence of the rich Colleges rather than to help the poor ones, and it seems a great mistake that the poor Colleges had not more representatives on the Commission. This might at least have saved the printing of a lot of recommendations which cannot by any possibility be generally carried into effect.

But our readers may be more anxious to know what is recommended in the case of undergraduates. This is equally confusing, and we will, as far as possible, use the Commissioners' own words. They have a high opinion of undergraduates: 'Of recent years the intellectual activity among the body of undergraduates has been very remarkable.' 'Serious extravagances on the part of undergraduates... has become uncommon.' Even the Pauper wins approval: 'Their record in after life proves an examination to be very good.' It is not the intellectual but the economic life of the undergraduate that has worried the Commissioners. Let us accompany them in their inquiries. To begin with 'Colleges
He paid his last debt to nature on the last day of March, 1631, and was buried in the S. isle behind the Choir of the cath. ch. of St. Paul near to the monument of Dr. Jo. Colet.

Isaac Walton's short biography of Donne was printed in 1654. It is a great piece of work. Extracts of Donne's sermons were edited by Mr. Pearse Smith and published a short while ago with a very good introduction.

In the sermons we can see the two pictures of Donne—the young poet in armour equipped for the wars, and the sepulchral effigy that makes such an impressive frontispiece to Mr. Pearse Smith's book.

This short sketch of Donne was written (without any excuse) in a hurry, but Isaac Walton's life (with the lives of two other of Donne's friends) and Mr. Pearse Smith's book have been sent to the College Library as a forfeit.

One thing more, Donne always, himself, pronounced his name to rhyme with 'gun' and not with 'gone'; he is not, alas! above making puns with his name and the past principle of the verb 'to do.' I have done. Ugh!

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

If the object in appointing a Royal Commission on Oxford and Cambridge was to enable Parliament to grant money to these ancient academies without undue twinges of conscience, the Commissioners may be said to have done their work well. The first result of their labours is a Blue Book of surprising literary charm, which shows the Universities in a very favourable light.

If, on the other hand, Parliament wants to know exactly what changes are needed, it may justly complain that the Commissioners have talked a lot, repeated themselves frequently, and raised a large number of issues, but are singularly indefinite, and, as it seems to us, self-contradictory when it comes to definite recommendations. Now and then we seem to get something definite. 'Licensed Houses,' they say in their discussion on College Estates, 'might be disposed of with advantage.' But no: they feel that this is too sweeping, and go on, 'except where there is a particular reason for their retention.' What reasons do they foresee, we wonder? Professors must be paid more; that is a statement which they do not qualify at all. But when it comes to recommending an actual figure, they recom since the war, at the task of keeping down the cost of food to undergraduates.' But on the other hand ' our conclusion is that the cost of living which no undergraduate in men's colleges, rich or poor, can escape is too high and should be reduced.' Among the steps recommended for reducing it are such things as 'bed-sitting rooms as far as the nature of the buildings permits,' lower laundry charges, 'not more than two cooks, both women,' and especially a resident Catering and Buying Expert to advise Bursars (the Expert, apparently to have a salary and an office).

The Commission's own Expert calculated that these and similar economies would have saved the undergraduates about £11,000 per annum. This sounds a lot, but it works out at less than £1 per undergraduate per term, and even then allowance has got to be made for the cost of the Expert and his office. However, by dismissing cooks and other old servants (are they to be pensioned?), a small saving is to be made for undergraduates, for 'the cost is too high and should be reduced.' But it is only thus reduced, apparently, in order to be much more noticeably increased elsewhere. 'The cost to Colleges [of a Pension Fund] should be met, if necessary, by increased fees.' Full economic rents should be charged for rooms; maintenance of establishment and the cost of the kitchen, &c., should be met entirely out of fees. Increases are recommended elsewhere in certain Tuition Fees, and yet 'the cost is too high and should be reduced.' It is true that some of the money thus gained is to go to poor students, but on the whole the recommendations of the Commission if adopted are likely to make an undergraduate's life dearer rather than cheaper. The truth seems to be that the Commissioners have listened to the evidence of witnesses, many of whom hold absolutely incompatible views as to the proper future of the University. They have tried to please them all. There are two ways, and two ways only, of making life at Oxford considerably cheaper: (i) By devising a scheme for making a financially profitable use of College buildings and servants during vacations, and (ii) By controlling the feeding and expenditure of undergraduates as schoolboys are controlled, and compelling all to live the life of the poorest. This obviously could be done, and clearly some of the witnesses before the Commission asked for it. The Commission has seen that such a course would destroy just that liberty which has made life at Oxford and Cambridge peculiarly educative. But they have not always had the courage of their convictions. In their more reasonable since the war, at the task of keeping down the cost of food to undergraduates. But on the other hand our conclusion is that the cost of living which on undergraduates in men's colleges, rich or poor, cannot escape is too high and should be reduced. Among the steps recommended for reducing it are such things as 'bed-sitting rooms as far as the nature of the buildings permits,' lower laundry charges, 'not more than two cooks, both women,' and especially a resident Catering and Buying Expert to advise Bursars (the Expert, apparently to have a salary and an office).

The Commission's own Expert calculated that these and similar economies would have saved the undergraduates about £1,000 per annum. This sounds a lot, but it works out at less than £1 per undergraduate per term, and even then allowance has got to be made for the cost of the Expert and his office. However, by dismissing cooks and other old servants (are they to be pensioned?), a small saving is to be made for undergraduates, for the cost is too high and should be reduced. But it is only thus reduced, apparently, in order to be much more noticeably increased elsewhere. The cost to Colleges (of a Pension Fund) should be met, if necessary, by increased fees. Full economic rents should be charged for rooms; maintenance of establishment and the cost of the kitchen, etc., should be met entirely out of fees. Increases are recommended elsewhere in certain Tuition Fees, and yet the cost is too high and should be reduced. It is true that some of the money thus gained is to go to poor students, but on the whole the recommendations of the Commission if adopted are likely to make undergraduates' life dearer rather than cheaper. The trust seems to be that the Commissioners have listened to the evidence of witnesses, many of whom held absolutely incompatible views as to the proper future of the University. They have tried to please them all. There are two ways, and two ways only, of making life at Oxford considerably cheaper: (i) By devising a scheme for making a financially profitable use of College buildings and servants during vacations, and (ii) by controlling the feeding and expenditure of undergraduates as schoolboys are controlled, and compelling all to live the life of the poorest. This obviously could be done, and clearly some of the witnesses before the Commission asked for it. The Commission has seen that such a course would destroy just that liberty which has made life at Oxford and Cambridge peculiarly educative. But they have not always had the courage of their convictions. In their more reasonable moments they admit that 'College life in our opinion must always be comparatively dear,' and 'We do not think it desirable that domestic service should be required of undergraduates. There would be no saving of expenditure unless a considerable amount of such service were performed, including probably the making of beds, tidying of rooms, and cleaning of boots and shoes. The work would be extremely unpopular, and would be badly done.' This is probably the wisest remark in the Blue Book.

With regard to Scholarships, the Commission recommends that all scholars should have free rooms, but money only if they can prove their need of it. This is not an unreasonable suggestion if it can be worked fairly, but those who have lived in the University since the war will not share the belief of the Commissioners that the Committee which allotted Government Grants was at all regularly successful in finding out the true financial position of the various claimants. Honest parents and guardians often came off badly on these occasions.

But the sections of the Report of greatest interest to Hertford are those which deal with trusts. It is recommended that trust funds should be taxed for University purposes like ordinary College Revenue. This will cost Hertford a lot, but is perfectly fair. It is also recommended that a permanent Statutory Committee should deal with all trusts executed more than fifty years ago, or forty years in the case of trusts to which denominational conditions are attached. These last words clearly refer to the 'Church of England' trusts governing Hertford Fellowships and Scholarships, which are between forty and fifty years old. Our readers will probably view this proposal with mixed feelings. On the one hand is the loyalty to the wishes of a most munificent Founder, on the other the knowledge that such restrictions are contrary to almost all modern feeling, and that it would be in many ways an immense help to Hertford to be exactly on a par with other Colleges. If this recommendation is adopted our £100 Scholarships will also certainly go, and our statutes, left alone by the last Commissioners, will be made to conform to those of other Colleges. There is much to be said both for and against this, and it is perhaps a good thing that it will have to be settled by an outside body.
UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE NEWS.

UNIVERSITY APPOINTMENTS, DISTINCTIONS, &c.

Curators of the (re-constituted) University Chest.—A. B. Poynton and A. J. Jenkinson.
Delegate for Nomination to Benefices.—Rev. J. McL. Campbell.
Perpetual Delegate of the Clarendon Press.—N. Whatley.
Honorary Secretary.—Lit. Hum.: N. Whatley.
Commissioner of the City of Oxford.—Rev. J. McL. Campbell.
Trustee of Keble College.—H. M. D. Parker (in place of H. B. Cooper, who has resigned).
Trustee of the Professor of Physiology.—K. J. Franklin.
Fellow of St John's College.—P. R. B. Reynolds.
Councillor of the City of Oxford.—Rev. J. McL. Campbell.
Tutor of Keble College.—H. M. D. Parker (in place of H. B. Cooper, who has resigned).
Demonstrator to the Professor of Physiology.—K. J. Franklin.
Junior Mathematical Exhibition.—Præsidens Accipitris: B. C. Akin.
Second Public Examination:
Lit. Hum.—Class II: H. M. D. Parker, P. K. B. Reynolds.
Theology.—Class I: E. B. Fry.
Class II: T. L. Grenville.

DEGREES CONFERRED.

D.M.—H. C. Spire.
D.Sc.—E. H. Herst.
M.Ch.—G. Perkins.
B.M.—C. G. H. Chavasse.

COLLEGE ELECTIONS, &c.

Honorary Fellow.—C. Grant Robertson, Principal of Birmingham University.

MATRICULATIONS.

SUMMER TERM, 1921.
Commission.—J. H. Richardson, Chesham.
UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE NEWS.

UNIVERSITY APPOINTMENTS, DISTINCTIONS, ETC.

HILTON SCHOLAR.—E. W. Hilton, Washington, Virginia, Military Institute; S. F. McCallum, Canterbury University College, New Zealand; R. M. Field, University of Iowa.

Rhodes Scholars.—S. W. Washington, Virginia Military Institute; S. P. McCallum, Canterbury University College, New Zealand; R. M. Field, University of Texas.

Commoners.—N. L. Whitworth, I-Harrow; F. E. Ford, 3  Lancing; E. M. B. Southwell, Lancing; M. E. Hardcastle, Winchester; F. M. Hamerton, Lancing; W. H. E. Gibson, Marlborough; K. Norwood; St. Peter's, York; B. B. D. Dyce, Ormskirk Grammar School, Kirkintilloch; N. B. Poynier, Trinity College, Kirkintilloch; K. C. G. Montgomery, Wellington; G. A. Morell, Wellington; J. A. Jordan, King's School, Warwick; L. E. Simmonds; St. Edward's, Oxford; R. D. Tennant, Radley; C. L. S. Walker, Braten; H. S. R. Lockheed, Cranleigh; H. C. Howells and J. D. Evans, All Saints University, Georgia; G. F. Sanderson, Cranleigh; H. V. Tolkien, Chetnole.

HILARY TERM, 1922.

Scholar.—E. A. St. J. Waugh, Lancing.

Rhodes Scholar.—M. H. Barry.

Commoner.—C. H. Baldwin, Harvard University.

Son of G. R. Brewis (94); nephew of C. C. Lynam (79); brother of J. N. C. Ford (19); son of the late Rev. L. J. Southwell (88); brother of D. Norwood (19); nephew of the late J. Nash (1); cousin of the late R. C. H. Kingston (09) and of F. D. Kingston (10).

ELECTIONS TO SCHOLARSHIPS AND EXHIBITIONS.

The following were erected as a result of the examination held in December, 1921:

IN CLASSICS:

To open Scholarships of B. Miller (Rugby), A. A. Symington (Haileybury), and A. W. M. Disney (Marlborough).

To an Open Scholarship of £80.—C. Y. Morgan (Christ's Hospital).

To a Meeke Scholarship of £40.—I. F. W. Schofield (King's School, Worcester).

To a War Memorial Exhibition of £50.—H. Beevor (Winchester).

IN MATHEMATICS:

To an Open Scholarship of £100.—S. de S. Chapman (Mill Hill).

To a Sons of Fellows Scholarship of J. Haselfoot (St. Edward's School).

To a College Exhibition of N. Gledhill (Bradford Grammar School).

IN HISTORY:

To an Open Scholarship of £100.—E. A. St. J. Waugh (Lancing).

To a Harrow Scholarship of £100.—V. B. Stainton (Harrow).

To an Open Scholarship of £80.—H. P. Jacobs (Heath School, Halifax).

To a War Memorial Exhibition of £50.—E. C. Cumming (Fettes).

OLD MEMBERS' DINNER.

The First Dinner on the lines indicated in our last number was held on Wednesday, April loth, 1921. The threat of a railway strike nearly led to its postponement, but at the critical moment the strike was called off.

About one in six of those who intended to come were prevented by military service or difficulties of transport, but in spite of this the dinner was generally held to have been a great success, and hopes that it would be a regular function were widely expressed. This success was very largely due to certain old members who organised parties of their contemporaries. If this enthusiasm can be maintained the possibilities of the Dinner are boundless.

At last year's Dinner there was an especially strong contingent from the late seventies and early eighties. Speeches were made by H. W. Disney, C. Grant Robertson and N. Whatley, and to everyone's delight the Principal (though ninety years old) gave a retrospect of his own career, which will not be forgotten by those who were privileged to hear it.

There were present:—
The Principal and Fellows.
The Rev. G. C. Richards, W. R. Buchanan-Riddell, Canon R. A. Burroughs (Former Fellow), W. J. Allchin, and the following:

1868 Canon R. A. Burroughs.
1874 Rev. W. E. Taylor.
1875 Rev. G. C. Bowring.
1876 E. Buck, W. Marsh, Rev. H. E. Crawley, T. S. Lea.
1877 H. W. Disney.
1878 C. Wigan, Rev. A. M. Winter.
1879 C. C. Lynam.
1880 Rev. M. F. Bell.
1881 Rev. W. C. Penney.
1882 Rev. H. Townshend, M.V.O.
1887 H. V. Plum, Rev. A. H. Jones, J. M. Kindersley.
1889 H. S. Pardoe, J. H. S. Hawes.
1891 T. C. McNaughton.
1892 H. E. Waldie.
1894 D. P. Wright, W. W. Hare, A. B. McIlwain, Rev. K. D. Macnade.
1895 H. E. Vann, E. L. Jerdine.
1896 Sir James Masterman Smith.
1898 Sir Harris Hardboune, E. J. Harding.
1899 T. Lady, A. O. Spalding.
1900 Rev. A. C. Cock, Rev. L. S. A. Wallis.
1901 E. S. Moor, P. L. Steward, D. J. Liddiard.
1902 Rev. B. Milbank.
1903 Rev. J. A. Kirby.
1905 Rev. R. J. Booth.
1906 A. E. Boyd, D. Freeman, R. T. Peel, P. W. Williams.
1908 H. M. D. Parker, M. D. Thomas.
1910 A. B. Rode.

It has been decided to hold a similar dinner this year on Tuesday, April 25th.

EIGHTS' WEEK CONCERT.

A most successful concert took place on 31st May, 1931. The Choir gave an admirable rendering of eight madrigals and part songs, of various periods and nationalities. The first group, consisting of sixteenth century works and Vaughan-Williams' 'Wassail Song,' were particularly well sung.

The opportunities of hearing unaccompanied vocal music are steadily increasing in Oxford and the College is to be congratulated on a notable contribution to this advance.

All thanks are due to Mr. Alchin for the enthusiasm and skill with which he trained the choir.

The remainder of the programme consisted of vocal and instrumental solos. We were glad to have the pleasure of again hearing Mr. Cameron Alexander, an old Hertford man who will, we hope, have a distinguished career as a singer. His beautiful tenor voice is as good as ever in quality and has increased in volume since last year.

Miss Murrell, with Mr. O. F. Clarke as accompanist, kindly contributed violino soli by Wieniawski, Arensky and Pauvé, and Miss Margarita Mackééras Old French, and modern French and English songs.

Mr. Munro gave a dignified and massive performance of Bach's Toccata and Fugue in C minor and John Ireland's Rhapsody for Piano Solo.

WAR MEMORIAL FUND.

Contributions to this funds are still received. The Tablet and the Reredos, so far as it is completed, have been paid for, but the funds for providing Exhibitions and Grants to Undergraduates in need of financial assistance will be kept open. Mr. C. E. Hasselfoot is Hon. Treasurer, and wishes to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the following subscriptions since our last number:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name of Donor</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. Blood</td>
<td>£ 5.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. M. Rogers</td>
<td>£ 1.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. Dawson</td>
<td>£ 0.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. H. G. Schmidt</td>
<td>£ 2.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. J. H. Taylor</td>
<td>£ 2.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. H. H. Baker</td>
<td>£ 2.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lieutenant-Commander &amp; Mrs. L. J. Keigh</td>
<td>£ 0.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mr. &amp; Mrs. G. S. Lucas</td>
<td>£ 2.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. E. Morgan</td>
<td>£ 0.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. Nett</td>
<td>£ 1.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

£19. 0. 0.
EIGHTH'S WEEK CONCERT.

A most successful concert took place on 31st May, 1921. The Choir gave an admirable rendering of eight madrigals and part songs, of various periods and nationalities. The first group, consisting of sixteenth century works and Vaughan-Williams' 'Wassail Song,' were particularly well sung.

The opportunities of hearing unaccompanied vocal music are steadily increasing in Oxford and the College is to be congratulated on a notable contribution to this advance.

All thanks are due to Mr. Allchin for the enthusiasm and skill with which he trained the choir.

WAR MEMORIAL FUND.

Contributions to this fund are still received. The Tablet and the Reredos, so far as it is completed, have been paid for, but the funds for providing Exhibitions and Grants to Undergraduates in need of financial assistance will be kept open. Mr. C. E. Haselfoot is Hon. Treasurer, and wishes to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the following subscriptions since our last number:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. Bland</td>
<td>5.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. M. Rogers</td>
<td>1.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Dawson</td>
<td>18.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. E. St. G. Schomberg</td>
<td>5.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. H. S. Goddington</td>
<td>1.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. J. H. N. Taylor</td>
<td>3.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lieut.-Commander &amp; Mrs.</td>
<td>5.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. E. E. Morgan</td>
<td>4.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. Nash</td>
<td>2.0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

It has been decided to hold a similar dinner this year on Tuesday, April 25th.
When the O.U.O.T.C. was re-started in Michaelmas Term, 1919, there was a natural feeling among many that enough time had been spent in 'War.' The result has been that the Cavalry and Artillery and other special branches have flourished increasingly, while the Infantry has not been a popular unit. This is still so to a certain extent, though the reasons for it have changed. The Public School Contingents are keen on maintaining their war-time strength, and many on leaving their Public Schools feel that they have no wish to continue with 'gravel parades' and similar apparently useless methods of spending a dull hour, without learning anything fresh or interesting. The War Office has recently realised this, and it has been decided to run the University Infantry Branches as Smallarms Schools, i.e., to provide a scheme of instruction in the rifle, Lewis gun, Stokes mortar, bombs, &c., that shall be complementary to what has been learnt at the Public Schools.

In this way it is hoped to make the O.T.C. more valuable and to increase the supply of efficient junior officers for Territorial and other units.

During the past two terms the Hertford Contingent has taken part in two competitions. In the Michaelmas Term a selected team marched to Bicester to compete for the Victoria Cup. It was a long way. They were placed fourth, which was satisfactory, considering the short time possible for training, and the difficulty of co-operating with other branches of College activities.

In the Lewis Gun Competition, held during the Hilary Term, the College was more fortunate, tying for first place with Keble second team. Several teams were close together in the points for the shooting, and the deciding factor was the very creditable marking for practical handling and fire control.

Camp will again be held at Shorncliffe at the end of the Trinity Term. Those who attended it last year will probably remember what a pleasant spot it was, and it is hoped that members of the contingent will come for as long as possible. The camp lasts 14 days, starting from the end of Term, and the compulsory period is the last eight days.

V. G. Shearburn now holds a Commission in the Corps.

R. C. Tredgold commands the Hertford Detachment.

COLLEGE CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

There, as the following notes will show, are in a state of great activity. There are two new comers (the Musical Society and the Hale), and there have been no deaths.

It is pleasing to note that we again have speakers at the Union, and this is perhaps the proper place for mentioning that T. L. Greenidge took a silent but active part in the performance by the O.U.D.S. of Benson's Pretenders.

J.C.R. DINING CLUB.

Members of the College are eligible for election to the Dining Club after the sixth week of their third term. Nominations are made by anyone in the College, and the Club is representative of the various activities. The officers, who are elected annually as officers of the J.C.R., are for 1922: J. N. C. Ford, steward; O. R. Tisdall, vice; M. T. Dunlop, hon. secretary; J. F. W. Nicolson and M. E. Webb, members of the committee.

In addition to a number of domestic dinners one 'guest' dinner has taken place in each Term except the last, when it was cancelled owing to the death of the Principal.

THE FOX DEBATING SOCIETY.

This Society has met, as is usual, on the alternate Wednesday evenings of the Michaelmas and Hilary Terms, and on the second Wednesday of the Trinity Term. Joint Debates have been held with the Debating Societies of Corpus and Wadham. Attendance has fallen off slightly in the last year. Speeches, on the other hand, have been generally of a high standard. The Freshmen have provided some good debaters, and two speakers, R. C. Thompson and E. A. St. J. Waugh, spoke at the Union in the Hilary Term.

The debates have been sometimes literary, but chiefly political, and it is interesting to note that the divisions have had a tendency to be carried by the Liberals.

R. D'E. Atkinson was President in Michaelmas Term, and the officers for the Trinity Term, 1922, are: M. T. Dunlop, president; W. F. Malcolm, vice-president; and R. C. Dust, hon. secretary.
COLLEGE CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

These, as the following notes will show, are in a state of great activity. There are two new comers (the Musical Society and the Hale), and there have been no deaths.

It is pleasing to note that we again have speakers at the Union, and this is perhaps the proper place for mentioning that T. L. Greenidge took a silent but active part in the performance by the O.U.D.S. of Ibsen’s ‘Prétendants.’

J.C.R. DINING CLUB.

Members of the College are eligible for election to the Dining Club after the sixth week of their third term. Nominations are made by anyone in the College, and the Club is representative of the various activities. The officers, who are elected annually as officers of the J.C.R., are for 1922: J. N. C. Ford, steward; O. R. Tindall, vice; M. T. Dunlop, hon. secretary; J. F. W. Nicholson and M. E. Webb, members of the committee.

In addition to a number of domestic dinners one ‘guest’ dinner has taken place in each Term except the last, when it was cancelled owing to the death of the Principal.

THE FOX DEBATING SOCIETY.

This Society has met, as is usual, on the alternate Wednesday evenings of the Michaelmas and Hilary Terms, and on the second Wednesday of the Trinity Term. Joint Debates have been held with the Debating Societies of Corpus and Wadham. Attendance has fallen off slightly in the last year. Speeches, on the other hand, have been generally of a high standard. The Freshmen have provided some good debaters, and two speakers, R. C. Thompson and E. A. St. J. Waugh, spoke at the Union in the Hilary Term.

The debates have been sometimes literary, but chiefly political, and it is interesting to note that the divisions have had a tendency to be carried by the Liberals.

R. D'E. Atkinson was President in Michaelmas Term, and the officers for the Trinity Term, 1922, are: M. T. Dunlop, president; W. F. Malcolm, vice-president; and R. C. Dust, hon. secretary.
HOBES SOCIETY.

Although the Hobbes Society is primarily intended for discussion of Political Science for the Modern History School, the constitution has been modified during the last year so that the membership may include those who are reading Greats or Modern Greats. The Society has now run successfully for two years, and owes its thanks during this time to Mr. Cruttwell for a paper on 'Machiavelli,' to Mr. Hutchinson for a paper on 'Burke as a Political Thinker,' and to Professor W. G. S. Adams for an address on 'Comparative Politics.'

In the Lent Term a Hobbes Society Dinner took place.

Officers for the Summer Term, 1922:
President, C. L. Mock; Vice-President, L. E. Short; Secretary, B. C. K. Hawkins.

THE HALE SOCIETY.

The Society, primarily intended for those members of the College who are reading Law, was formed in the Hilary Term, 1920. At the opening meeting held early in the Term, an interesting and amusing paper on Sir Matthew Hale was read by H. Fellows-Smith. Since this regular meetings have taken place, papers alternating with moots.

The Hale has to thank the Hobbes Society for two interesting joint meetings, which it owes to the latter.

Officers for Hilary Term, 1922:
President, R. C. Tredgold; Secretary, D. R. Michener.

MUSICAL SOCIETY.

A Musical Society has been formed which holds four or more concerts during each Term. The aim of the Society has been to provide programmes of the best music, classical or modern, and to make use of College talent as far as possible. Among the visitors from outside who have given concerts have been Dr. Ernest Walker, who played at the first meeting of the Society, Mr. Taylor (St. John's) and Mr. Coghill (Exeter). The chief Hertford contributors so far have been L. S. Munn, to whose efforts the Society owes its inception, R. B. Davis and W. H. E. Glennie.

The membership of the Society is at present thirty-four, and it is hoped that it will increase next year. There is a real need in the College for a strong Musical Society, not only to encourage local talent, but also to enable those who are not members of the University Musical Club to hear good music.

The annual subscription is 5/-, which goes entirely towards the hire of the hall.

A Musical Society.

President, Mr. Denniston; Vice-President, R. B. Davis; Secretary, W. H. E. Glennie; Treasurer, E. V. C. Palm.ter.

TYNDALE SOCIETY.

This Society has met regularly during the year on Monday evenings, and papers have been read by members on very diverse topics, mainly literary.

We have to thank Sir Walter Raleigh for a paper on 'Matthew Arnold,' Mr. Whately for one on 'Swinburne,' and Mr. Murphy for one on 'Instruments of Criticism.'

The next term there will be only two meetings.

President, R. C. Dunt; Secretary, G. A. Stone.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS UNION.

Meetings have been held during the Lent Term by the League of Nations Union in College, at which papers have been read, followed by discussion. There have not yet been enough of these for it to be possible to forecast the extent to which they will become regular and popular, but it is to be hoped and expected that they will.

College Secretary, R. C. Thompson.

THE CHRISTIAN UNION.

There has been an increased demand in the College since the war for some means of discussing the many social, political and moral questions of the day, and the O.S.C.U. has been revived with renewed vigour. Though most of the original members have now gone down, there remains considerable keenness, especially among the Freshmen, and the various groups have been well supported.

The most popular group has discussed a variety of subjects which come under the general head of Political and Economic Study. Papers have been read by members of the College and also by such outside authorities as Mr. Texels, Secretary of the Educational Settlement Association, and Mr. Frank Wise, late British Representative on the Supreme Council and designated for Geneva.
HOBES SOCIETY.

Although the Hobes Society is primarily intended for discussion of Political Science for the Modern History School, its constitution has been modified during the last year so that the membership may include those who are reading Greats or Modern Greats. The Society has now run successfully for two years, and owes its thanks during that time to Mr. C. Reid for a paper on "Machiavelli," to Mr. M. E. J. Denton for a paper on "Burke as a Political Thinker," and to Professor W. G. S. Adams for an address on "Comparative Politics."

In the Lent Term a Hobes Society Dinner took place.

Officers for the Summer Term, 1922—
President, R. C. Dunt; Vice-President, L. B. Short; Secretary, R. C. Thompson.

THE HALE SOCIETY.

The Society, primarily intended for those members of the College who are reading Law, was formed in the Hilary Term, 1920. At the opening meeting held early in the Term, an interesting and amusing paper on Sir Matthew Hale was read by H. Fellows-Smith. Since this regular meetings have taken place, papers alternating with moots. The Hale has to thank the Hobes Society for two interesting joint meetings, which it owes to the latter.

Officers for Hilary Term, 1922—
President, C. E. Tredgold; Secretary, D. R. Michener.

MUSICAL SOCIETY.

A Musical Society has been formed which holds four or more concerts during each Term. The aim of the Society is to provide programmes of the best music, classical or modern, and to make use of College talent as far as possible. Among the visitors from outside who have given concerts have been Dr. Ernest Walker, who played at the first meeting of the Society, Mr. Taylor (St. John's), and Mr. Coghill (Exeter). The chief Hertford contributors so far have been W. S. Mann, to whose efforts the Society owes its inception, R. B. Davis and W. H. E. Glennie.

The membership of the Society is at present thirty-four, and it is hoped that it will increase next year. There is a real need in the College for a strong Musical Society, not only to encourage local talent, but also to enable those who are not members of the University Musical Club to hear good music.

HERTFORD COLLEGE MAGAZINE.

The Terminal subscription is 5/-, which goes chiefly towards the hire of the piano.

Officers for 1922—
President, Mr. Denniston; Vice-President, R. B. Davis; Secretary, W. H. E. Glennie; Treasurer, E. V. C. Plumptre.

TYNDALE SOCIETY.

This Society has met regularly during the year on Monday evenings, and papers have been read by members on very diverse topics, mainly literary.

We have to thank Sir Walter Raleigh for a paper on 'Matthew Arnold,' Mr. Whatley for one on 'Samian Ware,' and Mr. Murphy for one on 'Instruments of Criticism.' Next Term there will be only two meetings.

President, R. C. Dunt; Secretary, E. A. Stonestreet.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS UNION.

Meetings have been held during the Lent Term by the League of Nations Union in College, at which papers have been read, followed by discussion. There have not yet been enough of these for it to be possible to forecast the extent to which they will become regular and popular, but it is to be hoped and expected that they will.

College Secretary, R. C. Thompson.

THE CHRISTIAN UNION.

There has been an increased demand in the College since the war for some means of discussing the many social, political and moral questions of the day, and the O.S.C.U. has been revived with renewed vigour. Though most of the original members have now gone down, there remains considerable keenness, especially among the Freshmen, and the various groups have been well supported.

The most popular group has discussed a variety of subjects which come under the general head of Political and Economic Study. Papers have been read by members of the College and also by such outside authorities as Mr. Teasdale, Secretary of the Educational Settlements Association, and Mr. Frank Wise, late British Representative on the Supreme Council and designated for Greece.
Other groups have been concerned with the philosophical basis of religion, and with detailed biblical study. It is evident that the activities of the C.U. supply a definite need, and it is realised that they can make a considerable contribution to the corporate life of the College.

THE HERTFORD HOP-PICKING CAMP.

Last year, after the necessary reconstruction of the previous summer, the Hopping Camp began with a minimum of initial difficulties, and in all ways fulfilled expectations. The season, although short, was fine on the whole, though, towards the end, certain of the Hertford detachment appear to have spent one stormy night holding their tent up.

The performances in the marquee each evening seemed to have an appeal, which was the just reward of their ingenuity. The pickers themselves were less apprehensive about displaying their vocal prowess than they were the year before. Something of incomprehensibility may have clung round our tents the first year after the war, but last year, even if we were not fully understood, we were accepted as necessary. The indispensability of the Rev. J. McL. Campbell to the success of the camp is now a platitude, but none the less significant.

THE HOP-PICKING CHRISTMAS PARTY.

The annual party was revived for the first time since the war on January 17th of this year. It was held in St. Olave’s Institute, Bermondsey, by arrangement with the Oxford and Bermondsey Clubs. The hall has a stage and a grand piano, both of which were fully exploited. After supper, lantern-slides of the hopping camp were shown, followed by a concert. Both Bermondsey and Hertford people sang, the performances of F. W. Harrold and D. P. Michener being particularly appreciated.

Some 90 hop-pickers were present, who came from all parts of East and South-East London. Nine Hertford people came, besides the Rev. J. McL. Campbell, and including two old members. Gratitude is particularly due to Miss Campbell, who worked energetically throughout.

ATHLETIC CLUBS.

We expressed an expectation last year that the season 1921—22 would prove more successful for our Athletic Clubs than its predecessor, and results have justified our expectations. It is true that the Boat Club is still living in hope, and that our sides have not come off in cup-lies. Otherwise we have been very successful and this in spite of, perhaps in part as account of, our having very few representatives in University games. For next year the prospects are very bright.

There has been an attempt to organise games for those who do not regularly represent the College. We hope this will be developed.

In the Michaelmas Term we won the new Novices Boxing Cup.

In addition to the ordinary club notices, we have to record (1) that we entered a team for the Inter-Colleges Swimming Cup, (2) that we entered for the Inter-Colleges Chess League, (3) that J. D. Hardman was reserve for the Oxford Squadron which flew against Cambridge.

Mr. Murphy succeeds Mr. Whittle as Hon. Treasurer of the College Clubs at the beginning of the coming Term.

THE BOAT CLUB.

The hopes of the Club and of the College that our crews would begin the upturned clinker to a more fitting place on the river have not been realised during the past year. In Eights’ Week our crew, after rowing through the first two days, was bumped each of the remaining days of the week; similarly the Torpids, which started out well by bumping St. John’s II on the first day of races, was re-bumped (the two-footed Crusader again) and ended one place lower than it began. The principal difficulty seems to have been a lack of weight and experience both in Eights and Torpids. However, neither hope nor enthusiasm are wanting at present and the Eight, which will be under the capable and experienced hand of Mr. Beck, one of the best coxes Hertford has produced, is getting down to work with the intention of regaining some of its lost prestige.
We expressed an expectation last year that the season 1921–22 would prove more successful for our Athletic Clubs than its predecessor, and results have justified our expectations. It is true that the Boat Club is still living in hope, and that our sides have not done off in cup-ties. Otherwise we have been very successful and this in spite of, perhaps in part on account of, our having very few representatives in University games. For next year the prospects are very bright.

There has been an attempt to organise games for those who do not regularly represent the College. We hope this will be developed.

In the Michaelmas Term we won the new Novices Boxing Cup.

In addition to the ordinary club notices, we have to record (1) that we entered a team for the Inter-College Swimming Cup, (2) that we entered for the Inter-College Chess League, (3) that J. D. Hardman was reserve for the Oxford Squadron which flew against Cambridge.

Mr. Murphy succeeds Mr. Whatley as Hon. Treasurer of the College Clubs at the beginning of the coming Term.

ATHLETIC CLUBS.

The Boat Club.

The hopes of the Club and of the College that our crews would begin the upward climb to a more fitting place on the river have not been realised during the past year. In Eights' Week our crew, after rowing through the first two days, was bumped each of the remaining days of the week; similarly the Torpid, which started out well by bumping St. John's II on the first day of races, was re-bumped later (the ten-footed Crustacean again) and ended one place lower than it began. The principal difficulty seems to have been a lack of weight and experience both in Eights and Torders. However, neither hope nor enthusiasm are wanting at present and the Eight, which will be under the capable and experienced hand of Mr. Buck, one of the best oars Hertford has produced, is getting down to work with the intention of regaining some of its lost prestige.
The crews during the past year were as follows:—

EIGHTS, 1921.

- Bow: E. V. C. Plumptre
- 2: R. d'E. Atkinson
- 3: E. J. W. Haynes
- 4: J. W. I. Whiteman
- 5: H. R. Green
- 6: H. M. D. Parker
- 7: C. P. Tindal-Atkinson
- Str. D. R. Michener
- Cox: J. A. Noble

Officers for 1921–22:—Captain, D. R. Michener; Hon. Secretary, J. W. I. Whiteman.

TORPIDS, 1922.

- G. C. F. Hayter
- C. R. S. Malleson
- C. H. Baldwin
- R. W. Stopford
- J. W. Baggally
- E. M. Holland
- J. Q. Dealey
- Z. E. Kingdon
- A. R. Martley

CRICKET CLUB, 1920—21.

This Club was not particularly strong last year, but on the whole we had quite a successful season. As a batting side we were very even and balanced, but there was a woeful lack of good bowlers. The cup-match we played brought this home very forcibly. We drew Exeter in the first round and were badly beaten. They set us over three hundred runs to make to win, a big handicap for any College side to contend with.

However, our last match, that against Magdalen, with whom we drew, was a very satisfactory ending to the season. Strengthened by this year's Freshmen, we should have a very successful season.

Congratulations to J. F. W. Nicolson on his being elected a member of the 'Authentics' C.C. and Captain of the College for the coming season.

Captain XI, Summer 1921:

R.U.F.C.

- Captain: J. F. W. Nicolson
- Hon. Sec.: C. J. Keith

Team: Harrold, back; Mock, Clough, Lyman and Walker, three-quarters; Watson and Montgomery, halves; Keith, Fellows-Smith, Harwood, Campbell, Tindal, Gleave, Owosso and Twiggall, forwards.

Size played: Fifteen, Barry, Hardman, Bicken, Underwood, Short, Davie and Madigan.

Played 26, won 17, lost 9, points for 334, against 194.

After a shaky beginning due to casualties, the side has fulfilled all the hopes of last year. A large proportion of the games have been won, and those lost have been very strenuously contested. In the 'Copper,' we were unfortunate to draw University, who were ultimately in the final, and lost 30–3 in a game which was interesting to watch right up to the end. The whole side played in a very spirited manner, and the score does not truly indicate the determined tackling of the backs throughout the game.

Nicolson, who captained the team, has been in form consistently, and through his initiative the back division has been very effective in attack.

The forwards have improved greatly on their form at the beginning of the season, and have shown themselves capable of playing a really hard game. Keith, Campbell and Gleave have been prominent especially; the latter played in the Freshmen's Trials, while Fellows-Smith as wing-forward or 5/8 has been indefatigable.

All the team will be up next year, and with Nicolson again Captains, a still more successful season can be expected.

R.C.F.

- Captain: H. J. O. Marshall
- Hon. Sec.: M. E. Webb

The prospects at the beginning of the Michaelmas Term were distinctly bright, since there remained a nucleus of last year's team to build upon, while the material among the Freshmen was also very useful. Unfortunately Webb was prevented by injury from playing, but we had great hopes of getting out of the Second Division, and we added to these expectations by a decisive victory over Oriel II in the first match of the League. The forward-line was all on a doubtful element, although the wings were fast and clever, and Punter in the middle was a past-master of the art of kicking. However, it lacked cohesion, until strengthened by the transference of Whitworth from centre-half to centre-forward, when goals came in greater numbers, our goal score at the end of the season being 252–21. This speaks well both for attack and defence, in which Marshall was a tower of strength with his sure kicking and tackling. Nash should make more of his speed and weight, and also of his head. Southwell in goal showed promise, but developed a habit of 'throwing himself' too soon and too often. Wood and Thomas were clever both in attack and defence, though the half-line suffered a great loss in Whitworth, who left his forwards with almost uncanny...
The crews during the past year were as follows:

EIGHTS, 1931

Bow: E. V. C. Plumptree.
B: W. E. White.
6: J. W. J. Haynes.
7: J. W. J. Whitteman.
8: H. R. Green.
9: H. M. J. Parker.
10: J. C. S. Atkinson.
Scr. D. B. McComber.
Cox. J. A. Nisbett.

TROJANS, 1932

B: C. R. S. Milner.
5: C. H. Baldwin.
7: J. W. Baggally.
8: E. M. Hall.
9: J. O. Dawney.
Scr. C. R. Martley.

OFFICERS FOR 1931-2

- Captain: D. R. Michener
- Hon. Secretary: J. W. I. Whitteman

A.F.C.,

Captain — H. J. O. MARSHALL.
Hon. Sec.—M. E. WEBB.

The prospects at the beginning of the Michaelmas Term were distinctly bright, since there remained a nucleus of last year's team to build upon, while the material among the Freshmen was also very useful. Unfortunately Webb was prevented by an injury from playing, but we had great hopes of getting out of the Second Division, and we added to these expectations by a decisive victory over Oriel II in the first match of the League. The forward line was all along a doubtful element, although the wings were fast and clever, and Pentecost in the middle was a past-master of the art of shooting. However, it lacked cohesion, until strengthened by the transference of Whitworth from centre-half to centre-forward, when goals came in greater numbers, our goal score at the end of the season being 102-21. This speaks well both for attack and defence, in which Marshall was a tower of strength with his sure passing and tackling. Nash should make more of his speed and weight, and also of his head. Southwell, well in goal, showed promise, but developed a habit of 'throwing himself too soon and too often. Wood and Thomas were clever both in attack and defence, though the half-line suffered a great loss in Whitworth, who led his forwards with almost uncanny tested. In the 'Cupper,' we were unfortunate to draw University, who were ultimately in the final, and lost 30-3 in a game which was interesting to watch right up to the end. The whole side played in a very spirited manner, and the score does not truly indicate the determined tackling of the backs throughout the game.

Nicolson, who captained the team, has been in form consistently, and through his initiative the back division has been very effective in attack.

The forwards have improved greatly on their form at the beginning of the season, and have shown themselves capable of playing a really hard game. Keith, Campbell and Glennie have been prominent especially; the latter played in the Freshmen's Trials, while Fellows-Smith as wing-forward or 5/8 has been indefatigable.

All the team will be up next year, and with Nicolson again Capitale, a still more successful season can be expected.

R.U.F.C.

Captain—J. F. W. NICOLSON.
Hon. Sec.—C. J. KIRK.

Team—Prop.—Harriott, back: Stove, Chel, Lyon and Waddell, three-quarters: Nicolson and Montgomery, halves: Keith, Fellows-Smith, Hawkins, Campbell, Tindall, Crowe and Young, forwards.

Also Played—Fulton, Barry, Hamerton, Brown, Henderson, Shaw, Devine and McComber.

Played 26, won 17, lost 9, points for 356, agains 191.

After a shaky beginning due to casualties, the side has fulfilled all the hopes of last year. A large proportion of the games have been won, and those lost have been very strenuously con-accuracy and precision. Neely and Adkins on the wing covered a lot of ground, but their efforts were not supported by any ' shove ' on the part of the insides. Unfortunately we failed to get into the First Division, since out of the seventeen matches played, we lost three, against B.N.C. II (6–3), Balliol (1–3), Magdalen II (1–3).

N. L. Whitworth and C. Pentecost were awarded their colours.

During the Hilary Term, all our energies were naturally directed towards the Cup-tie, in which we were drawn against University. We missed Thomas very much at left-half, but Hardcastle made an efficient substitute. Two days before the Cup-tie, we had beaten Worcester (the subsequent finalists), and we had great hopes of securing a victory. The game was fast and evenly-contested, but our attacks did not materialise owing to the fact that we were forced through injuries to play rather an experimental forward-line. There was no score until five minutes from full time, when an excellent shot put University ahead. We could not retaliate in time, and the result was 1–0 against us. The rest of the Term was devoted to friendlies, most of which were won.

J. C. Neely was elected Captain for next season, and N. L. Whitworth Hon. Secretary.

The College Lawn Tennis Club enjoyed a most popular and in many ways a successful season last year. In addition to the fine weather the Club was lucky in having such a captain as G. Stoughton Harris, whose powers of organisation had restarted the Tennis Club so successfully after the war.

A large number of matches were arranged for the first six, of which a fair proportion were won. Three old colours were still up, G. Stoughton Harris, A. Lyceott Martin, the Hon. Secretary, and J. F. W. Nicholson; and before the end of the season R. C. Chalk, C. L. Mock and F. W. Harrold were given their colours.

In the Cup-tie Hertford were drawn against Christ Church, who were a comparatively strong team; of the doubles Hertford won three and lost six points; in the singles, of which only four were played, Hertford only won one point. Nicholson defeated the Christ Church Captain after a fine duel; thus, winning the remaining three singles, Christ Church gained the nine points necessary for a win.

The Handicap Doubles Tournament, which was played off during the Term, was won by E. W. Gilbert and L. F. Clarke, with a handicap of plus thirty, their opponents in the final being C. L. Mock and J. C. Neely, who were handicapped by — 15.

The Principal's Challenge Cup was won for the second year in succession by J. F. W. Nicholson; his opponent in the challenge round was R. C. Chalk, who defeated him in three straight sets, with the loss of only five games.

LAWN TENNIS CLUB.

The College Lawn Tennis Club enjoyed a most popular and in many ways a successful season last year. In addition to the fine weather the Club was lucky in having such a captain as G. Stoughton Harris, whose powers of organisation had restarted the Tennis Club so successfully after the war.

A large number of matches were arranged for the first six, of which a fair proportion were won. Three old colours were still up, G. Stoughton Harris, A. Lyceott Martin, the Hon. Secretary, and J. F. W. Nicholson; and before the end of the season R. C. Chalk, C. L. Mock and F. W. Harrold were given their colours.

HOCKEY CLUB.

At the beginning of the season, it was obvious that we should have to depend largely on the Freshmen for the team. A. Lyceott Martin did not come up, and so R. G. Patterson took his place as Captain, while R. C. Dunt became Secretary. Very soon it became clear that there was considerable talent available, but it was difficult to combine it to the best advantage in the forward-line. By the end of the season that problem had been solved, and a very formidable line of first and clever players was produced, the left wing being particularly good. F. G. Patterson left his old place of outside-right, and was the mainstay of the team at centre-half. His work in attack and defence was consistently excellent, and he was well supported by J. G. Stansfeld and A. H. Montgomery, the latter a comparatively late discovery who improved immensely in the course of the season. S. Nash played back with R. C. Dunt until he (Nash) became unfit, and H. G. Micks filled his place. In the MidlandessTerm only one match was lost, and prospects for the Cup-tie seemed good. We drew St. John's, played on a very muddy ground, and lost 1–4. The score probably flatters them; we did not play up to form except for about ten minutes at the beginning of the second half. Our record for the season shows that we have one of the six best teams in the Varsity, and we scored over three times as many goals as we scored against us. One ' A ' team also was quite successful.
In the Cup-tie Hertford were drawn against Christ Church, who were a comparatively strong team; of the doubles Hertford won three and lost six points; in the singles, of which only four were played, Hertford only won one point, Nicolson defeating the Christ Church Captain after a fine duel; thus, winning the remaining three singles, Christ Church gained the nine points necessary for a win.

The Handicap Doubles Tournament, which was played off during the Term, was won by E. W. Gilbert and L. F. Clarke, with a handicap of plus thirty, their opponents in the final being C. L. Mock and J. C. Neely, who were handicapped by —15.

The Principal's Challenge Cup was won for the second year in succession by J. F. W. Nicolson; his opponent in the challenge round was R. C. Chalk, whom he defeated in three straight sets, with the loss of only five games.

HOCKEY CLUB.

At the beginning of the season, it was obvious that we should have to depend largely on the Freshmen for the team. A. Eycott Martin did not come up, and so F. G. Patterson took his place as Captain, while R. C. Dunt became Secretary. Very soon it was clear that there was considerable talent available, but it was difficult to combine it to the best advantage in the forward-line. By the end of the season that problem had been solved, and a very formidable line of fast and clever players was produced, the left wing being particularly good. F. G. Patterson left his old place of outside-right, and was the mainstay of the team at centre-half. His work in attack and defence was consistently excellent, and he was well supported by J. G. Stansfeld and A. H. Montgomery, the latter a comparatively late discovery who improved immensely in the course of the season. S. Nash played hack with R. C. Dunt until he (Nash) became unfit, and H. G. Hicks filled his place. In the Michaelmas Term only one match was lost, and prospects for the Cupper seemed good. We drew St. John's, played on a very muddy ground, and lost —4. The score probably flatters them; we did not play up to form except for about ten minutes at the beginning of the second half. Our record for the season shows that we have one of the six best teams in the Varsity, and we scored over three times as many goals as were scored against us. Our 'A' team also was quite successful.

LAWN TENNIS CLUB.

The College Lawn Tennis Club enjoyed a most popular and in many ways a successful season last year. In addition to the fine weather the Club was lucky in having such a captain as G. Stoughton Harris, whose powers of organisation had restarted the Tennis Club so successfully after the war.

A large number of matches were arranged for the first six, of which a fair proportion were won.

Three old colours were still up, G. Stoughton Harris, A. Eycott Martin, the Hon. Secretary, and J. F. W. Nicolson; and before the end of the season R. C. Chalk, C. L. Mock and F. W. Harrold were given their colours.
For next season, R. C. Dunt has been elected Captain, and G. Stansfeld Secretary.

ATHLETICS.

President 1921—22—J. N. C. Ford.

No College Sports were held this year, but trials for the various inter-College competitions took place instead. Of last year's performers T. L. Greenidge and F. L. W. Richmond were the only ones to run consistently, though others were called upon to fill up vacancies in the different teams. But of the Freshmen J. S. Brewis, F. E. Ford, C. L. S. Walker and S. Nash were of the greatest value. In the Freshmen's Sports, Ford won the Hurdles, and Walker. Brewis and Nash all ran in the final of the Hundred; also Walker was third in the Quarter and Brewis had some success in the Long-Jump. In the Seniors' Sports Greenidge was fifth in the Mile. These runners formed the nucleus of the team for the inter-College Cup, but owing to weakness in the long-distance events, and lack of any high-jumper, we did not survive the first round. In the Relay Races the hurdlers were seen to advantage, and perhaps were unfortunate not to reach the final. But it was not possible to find four runners of sufficient merit to make the other relay teams strong enough to get through more than one round. J. G. S. Thomas, T. L. Greenidge and J. C. Neely, with very little training, all ran creditably in the Inter-College Cross-Country Race; but here again the rest of the team was very weak.

If only more distance runners, a weight-putter and a high-jumper were forthcoming next year, we should have a very fair team, for all the above-mentioned athletes, except J. G. S. Thomas, will be up, and it is to be hoped that J. N. C. Ford, who has been suffering from an injury all this season, will again be fit.

In the O.U.A.C. Sports J. S. Brewis tied for first place with a long jump of 18 ft. 4 in., and was subsequently selected to represent the Varsity against Cambridge. F. E. Ford, who is present, has not quite sufficient pace for the Hurdles, but was subsequently selected to represent the Varsity against Cambridge. F. E. Ford, who is present, has not quite sufficient pace for the Hurdles, but was subsequently selected to represent the Varsity against Cambridge.

The following possess their colours for Athletic Sports:

J. N. C. Ford was a member of the combined Oxford and Cambridge team which visited America in July, 1921.

In the Oxford and Cambridge Sports in March, J. S. Brewis defeated his Oxford first string, but the two Cantabys were too long for him.

President 1922—23, J. S. Brewis.

BOXING.

Last summer, J. C. S. Thomas was elected President of the O.U. Boxing Club. He was unable to box against Cambridge in his last year, but sustained his record of winning all his fights, his victories including two wins against Cambridge (1920, 1921, Light Weight), and two in the Universities, Hospitals, and Cadets Championships.

S. Nash would probably have boxed against Cambridge this term, but broke his arm fighting against the Army near the beginning of term.

Hertford won the Inter-College Novice Competition in the Michaelmas term, S. Nash (Light-Heavy Weight) and J. Q. Dealey (Light Weight) both winning their weights.

NEWS OF PAST MEMBERS.

We would again remind our readers that by the Representation of the People Act anyone who has ever taken a B.A. or any other Degree of the University can now obtain a Parliamentary vote, whether his name is on the books or not. It is only necessary to obtain a form from the Registrar and return it to him with 20/-.

As an M.A. Degree has ryes lost some of its commercial value, the College has endeavoured to make it easier to take. A printed form can be obtained from the Bursar.

We ask our readers to help us to make this section of the Magazine as complete as possible by supplying us with news about themselves.

ECCLASIASTICAL.

Rev. Canon P. J. B. Bayne, M.A.: Archdeacon of Hertford (first holder of this office)
For next season R. C. Dust has been elected Captain, and G. Stanisfeld Secretary.

Colours.

ATHLETICS

President 1921–22—J. N. C. Ford.

No College Sports were held this year, but trials for the various inter-College competitions took place instead. Of last year’s performers T. L. Greenidge and F. L. W. Richmond were the only ones to run consistently, though others were called upon to fill up vacancies in the different teams. But of the Freshmen J. S. Brewis, F. E. Ford, G. L. S. Walker and S. Nash were of the greatest value. In the Freshmen’s Sports, Ford won the Hurdles, and Walker, Brewis and Nash all ran in the final of the Hundred; also Walker was third in the Quarter and Brewis had some success in the Long-jump. In the Seniors’ Sports Greenidge was fifth in the Half-mile. These runners formed the nucleus of the teams for the Inter-College Cup, but owing to weakness in the long-distance events, and lack of any high-jumper, we did not survive the first round. In the Relay Races the hurdlers were seen to advantage, and perhaps were unfortunate in not reaching the final. But it was not possible to find four runners of sufficient merit to make the other relay teams strong enough to get through twice than one round. J. G. S. Thomas, T. L. Greenidge and J. C. Neely, with very little training, all ran creditably in the Inter-College Cross-Country Race; but here again the rest of the team was very weak.

If only more distance runners, a weight-lifter and a high-jumper were forthcoming next year, we should have a very fair team, for all the above-mentioned athletes, except J. G. S. Thomas, will be up, and it is to be hoped that J. N. C. Ford, who has been suffering from an injury all this season, will again be fit.

In the O.U.A.C. Sports J. S. Brewis tied for first place with a long jump of 30 ft. 4 in., and was subsequently selected to represent the Varsity against Cambridge. F. E. Ford, who at present has not quite sufficient pace for the Hurdles, did not succeed in getting a place.

The following possess their colours for Athletic Sports:

NEWS OF PAST MEMBERS.

We would again remind our readers that by the Representation of the People Act anyone who has ever taken a B.A. or any other Degree of the University can now obtain the Parliamentary vote, whether his name is on the books or not. It is only necessary to obtain a form from the Registrar and return it to him with ten shillings.

As an M.A. Degree has thus lost some of its commercial value, the College has endeavoured to make it easier to take. A printed form can be obtained from the Bursar.

We ask our readers to help us to make this section of the Magazine as complete as possible by supplying us with news about themselves.

ECCLESIASTICAL.

Rev. M. Berney (19) : Vicar of St. John the Baptist, the Rectory of Hungerford.
Rev. Canon E. A. Burroughs : Dean of Selena.

Rev. A. D. Bury (74) : Vicar of Kingston.

Rev. W. J. Carsey (94) : has been consecrated Bishop of Bloemfontein, and took a prominent part as peace-maker in the disturbances on the Rand.

Rev. M. D. Cottrell (94) : Vicar of St. Paul’s, Linlithgow.

Rev. C. H. Cowling (78) : Vicar of Woolwich, organised the movement which saved Shooter’s Hill from the builder.

Rev. C. V. Crampton (94) : Vicar of St. John’s, Rugby.

Rev. R. H. Stringer (74) : Vicar of St. John’s, Rugby.

Rev. J. E. Dobson (17) : Vicar of Chichester, in the Church of Southwell.

Rev. L. J. Wells (90) : Vicar of St. John’s, Rugby.

Rev. G. P. Yates (90) : Vicar of St. John’s, Rugby.

Rev. F. P. Woolston (90) : Has resigned the Headship of Oxford House.

ELECTED TO THE LOWER HOUSE OF CONVOCATION ::-

Rev. Canon T. W. Cook (94).

Rev. J. Salisbury (94).

Ripon Hall, 11. J. Larwood (93) : R. D. E. Robinson (93) : C. K. Pike (93)."
S. C. Hebard (95): Order of the Nile, 3rd Class.
T. A. Joyce (08), O.B.E.: Deputy Keeper in the Department of Ceramics and Ethnography, British Museum.
N. L. Lockton (04): Committee Clerk, House of Commons.
A. T. Loyd (00), O.B.E.: Returned unopposed as (Co. U.) M.P. for the Abingdon Division of Berkshire.
R. G. Marriott (06): Assistant Conservator of Forests, India.
L. S. O'Malley (91), I.C.S., is on long leave from India and living in Oxford.
R. T. Peel (11), M.C.: Assistant Private Secretary to the new Secretary of State for India.
F. Savery (02): H. M. Consul for the Republic of Poland; to reside at Warsaw.
E. E. Stock (30): With Steel Bros., Oilfield Engineers, Burma.
G. Stoughton Harris (19): Accountant in London.
A. Sims (20) is acting at the Old Vic.
Captain F. W. H. Nicholas (19), M.C.: Won the Army Championship and represented England against Scotland in the Hurdles.
Called to the Bar.—J. R. P. Penn (to) and P. C. O. Riddell (12).
Bar Exams.—Criminal Law, Class I: R. C. Tredgold (30).
Roman Law, Class II: A. S. Hinshelwood (13).

EDUCATIONAL.

A. C. Cameron (19): Deputy Director of Education at Northampton.
J. A. Cave (20): Professor of Natural History, Japan.
C. P. Davies (19): Inspector, Education Department, Nigeria.
J. R. Jarman (19): Assistant Principal, Medical School, Singapore.
E. J. W. E. Haynes (19): Lecturer in Economics, University of Toronto.
Professor H. C. K. Plummer (99) has left Vienna and is now teaching in the Royal Artillery College, Woolwich.

MASTERSHIPS.—

G. V. Grice (19): Dean’s College School.
I. W. Reynolds (19): Clore School, Harrow.
E. Black (19) has retired from Charter’s Hospital and M. C. Kemp (80) from Harrow.

PUBLIC SERVICES.

E. V. Bowen (20), P.R.C.S., F.R.M.S.: Statistical Department, London.
J. D. Craig (20): Latin Section of the University of Cambridge.
S. E. B. Evans (19): Created a Knight (New Year’s Honours).
Sir H. P. Hamilton (19), K.C.B.: Appointed by the King to be a Commissioner of Customs and Excise.

PUBLICATIONS.

E. N. Bennett (19): The German Army in Belgium, being a Translation of the German White Book of May, 1915. The Swarthmore Press, Ltd.
T. A. Alvis (42): (i) South American Archaeology, Mittel Press; (ii) appendix to Sir A. Schlie’s Serinad, 5 vols., at the Clarendon Press.

HERTFORD COLLEGE MAGAZINE, 33

MARRIAGES

CLARKS—FARQUHARSON.—On the 25th Feb., at St. Saviour's, Hampstead, Robert Duncan Clarke (88) to Beatrice Gertrude, widow of Lieut. Norman Kenneth Farquharson.

COUNSELL—BINNING.—On the 14th Dec., at St. Saviour's, Oxton, Birkenhead, Hugh A. Counsell (87) to Mary Constance, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bingham, 16 Kingsmead Road, South Birkenhead.

DIXEY—ANDERSON.—On the 25th July, at St. Michael's, Oxford, Harold Giles Dixey (is) to Joan Alex, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Anderson, Stone House, Oxford.

FOX—HORNER.—On the 11th Oct., Lionel W. Fox (13) to Miss Marjorie Horner.

LACEY—SMITH—BROWNLIE.—On the 31st Aug., at the Parish Church, Bloxham, Oxfordshire, Lionel Lacey-Smith to May Wakefield, daughter of the late Archibald Brownlie and Mrs. Brownlie.

NORIE—MILLER—BARNES.—On the 14th Sept., at St. Clement Danes, London, W.C., Stanley Norie-Miller, M.C. (07), to Grace Janet Barnes, daughter of the late Mr. Juste Blennerhasset Eagar and Mrs. Eagar, of Port Elizabeth, South Africa.

REID—OLDFIELD.—On the 18th Oct., at St. Mary's Church, Headley, John Liltingston Reid (04) to Edith Amy, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Oldfield, of Headley, Epsom.

THOMAS—DALZELL—PIPER.—On the 26th July, at St. Peter's, Camerton, Bath, Meredith Dillon Thomas, M.C. (13), to Rachel Marion, youngest daughter of the late Rev. Arthur Dalzell-Piper, Vicar of Allerby, Northants, and Mrs. Cambie, The Rectory, Camerton.

OBITUARY

Boyd.—Henry Boyd, D.D., Principal of the College since 1877, died in his lodgings in the College on Saturday, March 4th, 1921, aged 91.

Adams.—Cyril Francis Adams, Scholar of the College, died of pneumonia in the Acland Home, Oxford, on May 16th, 1921, aged 22. The death of a resident undergraduate is a tragedy which Hertford has happily seldom before experienced. The loss of Adams was particularly sad. Within a few weeks he was to enter for the Final History School, in which he was expected to obtain a First, and he appeared to have a distinguished and very useful career in front of him. He had played a prominent part in post-war Oxford, especially in connection with the Students' Christian Union, to which at the time of his death he was Secretar-elect for Oxford. He had also a few weeks before he died served at Second at Hertford. At Oxford he was a member of the University Conference on Settlements, held at Trench Hall. In College he was an outstanding personality with great interest in intellectual and social questions and a marked independence of character and clearness of purpose. Adams was educated at Dean Close School, and for a short time served there as a Master and an officer in the O.T.C. The funeral service was held in Hertford (the first ever held in the new chapel), and the burial took place at Holywell Cemetery.

Bleckley.—Henry Bleckley died of pneumonia at Cloverley, Bowdon, Cheshire, on 25th May, 1921, aged 30. He came to Hertford as a Classical Exhibitioner from Radley in October, 1910, took a Second in Mods. in 1912, a Third in Greats in 1914, and rowed in the Torpid. During the War he served in the Cheshire Yeomanry, and his health suffered. For some time he was in a solicitor's office, but at the time of his death he was preparing to take Orders. He was married in 1919.
DRANE.—The Rev. William Edward Deane, of Wilby Rectory, Attleborough, died in October, 1921. He was one of the small surviving number of members of Magdalen Hall who kept their names on the books of Hertford. He was a Meeks Scholar, took a First in Mathematical Mods, a Second in Mathematical and a Third in Classical Finals, becoming a B.A. in 1864. For a short time he was Vice-Principal of Culham College and later Headmaster of Bungay Grammar School, and for many years he was Rector of Eccles.

HOOGSTON.—Charles Herbert Hodgson died at Sherborne on 30th March, 1922, aged 64. He had only recently retired from the mastership at Sherborne which he had held since 1881. He went to Hertford as a Scholar from Harrow in 1877.

JEANs.—The Rev. Canon George Edward Jeans, F.S.A., died at Shorwell Vicarage, Isle of Wight, on 7th August, 1921. Appointed to a Fellowship at Hertford by Mr. Baring in 1875, he was Senior Fellow at the time of his death. He never ceased continuously at Hertford, but was a regular visitor on the occasion of important College Meetings or of Gaudies at his original college of Pembroke, when he was often the guest of our Principal. Most of our readers will remember the characteristic button-hole which always accompanied him on visits, and in reply he is more intimately known by his translation of Cicero's Letters. From 1874 to 1887 he was a Master at Haileybury, where he made a great reputation, after which he was appointed to the College living which he held until his death. He was a good scholar (he won the Gaisford Greek Prose and the Latin Essay), and in addition to his works on Cicero wrote a number of archaeological works, especially about Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. He also wrote a historical account of the Octagon House (see College History, p. 164). He was a great authority on roses.

LOCKHART.—James Somerville Lockhart died very suddenly of heart failure at Melrose on 6th Jan., 1922. He had been a Fellow of Hertford since 1875. From Winchester he won a Scholarship at Corpus, and there pursued with apparent effort a peculiarly brilliant career as a Scholar, winning the Hertford, Craven and Derby from fields which included Asquith, Milner and the other great men of that remarkable period. Mr. Baring was attracted by his career, and Lockhart soon became, as a contemporary has put it, "one of the most brilliant of the specially able and brilliant complement with which Mr. Baring launched Hertford College on her new start." A singular charm and ease characterized everything about him—his conversation, his looks, his recreations. For some years he was a Tutor in Hertford; then he became Secretary to the Trustee Delegacy and to the Oxford and Cambridge Examinations Board; then he left Oxford to become Secretary to the Civil Service Commission, and lately he had spent much of his time in Scotland. Except for one short visit in 1914 he had not been in Oxford for many years. He devoted much time to the care of the children of his younger brother, A. F. M. Lockhart, also for a short time a Fellow of Hertford, who died young. Both were children of Scott's biographer.

MILBS.—The Rev. Bernard Newton Miles died of pneumonia at Parwick, on 7th July, 1921. After leaving St. Peter's School, York, he spent some years in a bank, but decided to take Orders, and came to Hertford in 1903. He was considerably older than the other undergraduates of his time, he entered with enthusiasm into College life, and was, in particular, a keen Volunter and a keen oarsman. For some time after his Ordination he rowed in the College Eight of 1907, and was cox in the College boat in the Henley Regatta of 1909. After the Great War he became a missionary in Japan, and remained in the East till 1919. He was back on the Hertford Barge in Eights' Week of 1920. A short time afterwards he was appointed Vicar of Parwick, near Ashbourne, Derbyshire. He married the sister of the Rev. G. E. R. Cooke, who was his contemporary at Hertford and cox of his Eight.

WILKins.—William Francis Herbert Wilkins died in Russia as the result of privations in the autumn of 1921, aged 50. William came to Hertford as an Exhibitioner from St. Edward's School, Oxford, in 1890. Already well acquainted with Russia, he won the Taylorian prize for Russian in 1893. Later he returned to Russia and became treasurer to the British Legion. At the beginning of the war he was anti-correspondent of the Times in Petrograd. Little has been heard of him since the Revolution, but his death appears to have been due to the present state of affairs in Russia.
THE COLLEGE MAGAZINE.

At present the Magazine appears once each year. The rates of subscription are:

- For one year ... 2/6
- For five years ... 10/6

A subscription for five years saves a lot of trouble.

Existing subscribers, whose subscriptions have run out, receive a notice to that effect with this number.

N. WHITELAW,
Hon. Treasurer.

ADDRESSES OF SUBSCRIBERS.

As periodically in the past we give a list of subscribers and their addresses. It does not of course include those who buy the Magazine in College.

Our object in publishing this list is partly to provide our readers with a directory and partly the hope that they will persuade others who are not on the list to become subscribers.

A. C. Burrell, 13 Boundary Road, Clifton, Bristol.
A. C. Burrell, Temple Mount, Croydon.
J. C. Alexander, 5 Camelford Street, Marine Parade, Hastings.
R. S. Allington, Summertown, Oxford.
R. S. Allington, 12 Repton Street, Oxford.
R. C. J. Armstrong, St Mary's, Pembroke, Hertford.
R. S. Brown, 16 Oxford Street, Oxford.
R. S. Brown, 18 Northgate Street, Stratford-upon-Avon.
W. Bailey, Ingleside, Highbury Field.
R. W. Baker, The Vicarage, Minster, near Ramsgate.
G. R. Brewis, 23 Warnborough Road, Oxford.
J. Brocklehurst, 9 Cholmondeley Road, West Kirby, Cheshire.
J. H. H. Broad, 80 Charlbury Road, Oxford.
G. R. Brewis, 33 Clarendon Road, Oxford.
G. R. Brewis, 33 Clarendon Road, Oxford.
G. R. Brewis, 33 Clarendon Road, Oxford.
G. R. Brewis, 33 Clarendon Road, Oxford.
G. R. Brewis, 33 Clarendon Road, Oxford.
E. R. Nicholls, 11 Early Crest, Exeter.
HERTFORD COLLEGE MAGAZINE.

THE COLLEGE MAGAZINE.

At present the Magazine appears once each year. The rates of subscription are—

For one year ... ... 3/6
For five years ... ... 10/6

A subscription for five years saves a lot of trouble.

Old numbers, most of which are still in stock can be had for

1/2 each.

Existing subscribers, whose subscriptions have run out, receive a notice to that effect with this number.

N. WHITNEY,
Hon. Treasurer.

ADDRESSES OF SUBSCRIBERS.

As periodically in the past we give a list of subscribers and their addresses. It does not of course include those who buy the Magazine in College.

Our object in publishing this list is partly to provide our readers with a directory and partly the hope that they will persuade others who are not on the list to become subscribers.

G. H. Abbott, 3 Broadford Road, Clifton, Bristol.
A. C. Adden, Temple Middle, Caxton, Surrey.
E. G. Alexander, r. 182nd Street, New York, N.Y.
E. J. Altmann, 574 Second Street, St. Louis, Mo.
B. A. Alme, 123 Beacon Street, Oxford.
Rev. C. J. Alwyn, St. Mary's, Oxford.
E. V. Austin, M.B.E., r. 182nd Street, Caxton, Surrey.
A. A. Barrow, 31 North Road, Regent's Park, N.W.1.
T. E. Batt, Barnborough, Barnby, Rotherham, South Yorkshire.
Rev. Canon Bayne, The Church House, 38 Round Road, Stratford, E.15.
C. E. W. Beale, Tugglane, via Quinlan, New York, N.Y.
Rev. F. M. Bell, Wheatsheaf Vicarage, Oxted.
W. S. Beynon, Gables, Hertford.
A. Berke, A. Packard, Old Blog, Bembridge.
Rt. Rev. the Bishop of Birmingham (St. J. Carey).
T. P. Birnie, Tower House, Shrewsbury.
Rev. T. C. Birrell, The Vicarage, Thame, Oxon.
A. G. Boyd, Ralph College, Potsdam.
Rev. W. G. Boyle, The Vicarage, Minster, near Pontefract.
G. R. Bowes, 25 Warrington Road, Oxford.
J. Brodkorb, 6 Cliffton Road, West London, Chichester.
J. B. Brown, 49 Chorley Road, Oxford.
T. H. Brown, 8 Marylebone Road, London, S.W.1.
F. Buck.
F. E. Beckett, 1, Burying Crescent, Birkenhead.
A. C. Cameron, M.C., Education Office, Northampton.
J. E. Campbell, Hertford College.
T. C. Campbell, Llwyn-On, Shrewsbury, Kent.
Rev. Hugh Cope, 41 Aylings Street, W.1.
K. M. Chipp, D.S.O., Newmarket, Suffolk.
W. E. Chipp, Lyndhurst, 6 The Drive, Walthamstow, E.17.
F. L. Clarke, Wyggeston Grammar School for Boys, Leicester.
J. D. Clarke, The Brewery, Wokingham.
Prof. H. G. Cleaver, University College, Johannesburg, S. Africa.
A. H. J. Cook, Bench Works, Newmarket-on-Tyne.
Rev. A. E. Cottle, St. James's Fishmongers, Banbury, Oxon.
C. M. Cox, Houghton Grange, Hertford.
Rev. J. E. Corbett, Sommerville College, Ascot, Berkshire.
T. P. Crickmay, 6 Merrow Road, Wetherston.
T. T. C. Crookes, 5, Southfield Road, Hertford.
Rev. H. L. Crow, All Saints, Newmarket.
T. C. C. Crozier, Christ's Hospital, Cambridge.
Rev. R. C. Dadd, 24 St. Andrew's Road, Southsea.
Prof. C. W. Davis, Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Pa., U.S.A.
W. F. Davie, Upham, Churt, Bordon, Hants.
F. C. Davis.
W. Dawson, Cold Ash, near Newbury.
H. G. Dixey, 8 West Hill Road, S.W.18.
H. T. Dixey, St. George's Mansions, Oxford.
H. M. Dolfino, Farnham, Hants.
F. R. Dyer, Stourport, Tipton's Bar, Midlothian.
A. T. Edwards, Courtland House, Heston, Middlesex.
Rev. P. C. Fox, The Rectory, Ripe, Sussex.
L. R. Fox, 27 South Hill Park, Hampstead, N.W.3.
J. T. Fox, Gwendraeth Dinas, Gwent, Brecon.
Rev. F. M. Lowery, Catholic Church, S.W.1.
T. M. Freame, M.B.E., 43 North Road,Nottingham.
Mr. W. Fry, The Broadway Congregational Mission, Huntingdon, Cambridge.
H. S. Furse, Redhill College, Oxford.
F. J. Gilbert, Bishop's College, Cheshunt.
A. S. Goto, 44 Alloa Road, Putney, S.W.16.
R. G. Grieve, Madras Club, Madras, India.
Rev. C. H. Grindlay, 31 Rectory Place, Woolwich, S.E.5.
J. Grundy, Repton School, Derby.
Rev. R. C. Guy, Forest School, Walthamstow.
Sir Henry Hamilton, K.C.B., 2 Adder Lane, Eton, W., S. Africa.
J. D. Hardison, R.A.F.
C. E. Hardish, Hertford College.
H. E. Hambrook, Yew Tree, Doncaster.
Lord Frankie Harvey, 42 St. George's Crescent, Brighton.
Sir Sir Henry Havelock, 40 Stoneleigh, near Kearsley, Hants.
Sir W. Hobbs, Studio, Chichester Church, Putney, S.W.1.
Rev. L. Hodson, Magdalen College, Oxford.
HERTFORD COLLEGE MAGAZINE.

A. J. Jenkins, Stamford House, Radcliffe Square, Oxford.
Rev. H. H. Jones, 4 Marley Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.
Rev. E. S. Jones, Bury Old Abbey, Lanarkshire, Kent.
J. R. Kay-Mount, Assistant Principal, Medical School, Singapore.
S. Kennedy-Coil, Delilah School and Malvern College Boys’ Club, Chaining Town, S.R.
D. Kingdon, M.C., Bridgend Vicarage, Holsworthy, N. Devon.
Rev. W. J. Knowelden, St. Alban’s Vicarage, Snookton Road, W. Hartlepoo.
C. S. Langley, Liverpool Chambers, Cherry Street, Birmingham.
H. N. Lupino, 24 Waterpark Road, Perton, Chalr.
C. L. Lyons, School House, The-nwell Road, Oxford.
Dr. S. G. Lyons, Pyfield Lodge, Pyfield Road, Oxford.
Rev. K. D. Mackenzie, St. John’s Vicarage, Richmond, Surrey.
P. Malins, 94 Salisbury Road, Oxford.
R. C. Mannett, Deputy Conservator of Forests, c/o King, King and Co., Agents, Bombay, India.
W. March, 5 The Crescent, Bedford.
Sir J. Muspratt Smith, B.B., 3 Halland Street, Wellingborough, W.
Rev. J. H. Maud, Peas Tabley, Carrington, Deth.
Rev. J. H. Millipole, C.B., Brook’s Club, St. James’ Street, S.W.3.
C. M. Mason, D.O.T., 43 Chalmersville Road, E.C.
Rev. R. S. Mifflin, The Vicarage, Cambridgeshire.
Rev. J. Morgan, The Vicarage, Carnarvon.
Monseur A. Muller, Avenue, Guernsey, Jersey, France.
Rev. J. O. Nash, D.D., Bishop Convent of Cape Town, Oatlands Avenue, Cape Town.
W. N. Nicholson, Manor House, Malvern, India.
H. C. Oddie, The Lawn House, Turvey, Beds.
E. Moon Orr, Old Orchard, Iver, Berks.
A. P. V. Figg, Old Castle Road, Warrington.
D. V. Shaw, Retford College, Retford.
H. C. Plummer, 41 Half Moon Street, N.
Rev. J. H. Powell, Christ Church Vicarage, Nettle, Bristol.
A. J. Richardson, St. Peter’s Court, Bradford.
W. R. Kidder, 6 Cambridge Terrace, Regent’s Park, N.W.1.
G. M. Robertson, Clare Cottage, Cumnor Valley, Oxford.
W. H. R. Rogers, M.C., Ferndale, near Penmaen, Cornwall.
J. W. Rudland, Linclime, 15 Fernfield Road, Fulham.
Rev. G. W. Russell, 9 Cardiff Road, Luton.
Rev. B. J. Scott, St. Albans Clergy House, Pouch Street, Southgate, S.E.
s. C. Somers, J.G.P., Nagpur, India.
Miss Soars, 30 Cyril Mynors, Royston Park, S.W.11.
F. A. Sorsby, Leotir’s Road, South Street, Durban, S. Africa.

PRINTED AT THE HOLYWELL PRESS, OXFORD.