COLLEGE NOTES

WORLD events of the past year have affected Oxford in so many ways that the last issue of the Magazine seems strangely remote. Yet the adjustment of College life to war-time conditions has been remarkably smooth. The resignation of Dr. Cruttwell in October and the appointment of Mr. Murphy as Principal were not wholly unexpected. The recovery in Dr. Cruttwell's health which we had hoped for was not sufficient to enable him to return for the Michaelmas term, and, with pressing war-time problems to be faced, his resignation had reluctantly to be accepted. In a decade of office, he has enhanced the prestige and efficiency of the College, and his vigorous personality has reached into wider spheres, through his valuable administrative work in the University, and the notable series of books which would have been, but for his illness, the prelude to even more important historical studies. It is with gratitude, and deep regret for their untimely ending, that we record his services to the College. Mr. Murphy, as Senior Fellow and Vice-Principal, has already had experience of his new office, and indeed he has a unique record of College administration, having occupied every College office in turn, and some of them, if legend is not wholly false, simultaneously. As Principal, he begins at a momentous and difficult time, and we wish him wholeheartedly a prosperous and calm outcome to the present stress of war. Mr. Hignett as Senior Tutor remains undismayed by the complexities of the new Special Examinations, but he has relinquished the office of Dean of Degrees to the Chaplain. Mr. Armstrong, having already succeeded Mr. Boase as a history tutor, took over the office of Dean last year. The departure of Professor Le Gros Clark to London to the Chair of Anatomy at King's College, which we were about to deplore, has, fortunately for the College, been postponed by the war. On the point of going to press, the Editor finds that he has been claimed by the expanding and devouring bureaucracy in Whitehall, probably for the duration of the war. Other Colleges have already been depleted more seriously in this way, and we must expect that further calls on the services of Fellows may be made. Perhaps the most serious loss to the College to date is that of Pollicott, our omniscient and highly efficient Bursar's Clerk, who has been posted to India as Lieutenant in the Welsh Fusiliers.

For the benefit of old members, it may be worth mentioning the most striking changes in University and College organization due to the war. Some Colleges have been wholly or partly requisitioned for Government use, some remain fully occupied by undergraduates. Hertford is lucky to be one of the latter, and under the new system the new quad is partly inhabited by a welcome and congenial colony of Oriel men. Battels have been fixed at a standard and economical rate in all Colleges. The new Special Examinations, taken in Sections, enable undergraduates whose residence is curtailed by military service to qualify conveniently for a War Degree, without prejudice to their future Honours course.

College A.R.P. measures were a formidable undertaking in September. The Bursar surpassed himself in ingenious activity, and crowned his efforts by producing some impressive armour-plate protection for the cellars of the new quad. Reassuring piles of sandbags grew under the expert eye of the Principal, who disclosed for our benefit, and alarm, his experiences of the effects of high explosive. The merits of the New Bodleian became more apparent when we inspected its convenient deep cellars and solid concrete floors.

We offer our congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown on the birth of a son, April 16, 1940, to A. D. M. Cox, Scholar of the College, 1932-7, on his election to a Fellowship in History at University College, and to J. H. Phillips and J. A. Walton, Scholars of the College, on their being awarded Goldsmiths' Exhibitions.

※ ※ ※

News of sport and social activity is naturally diminished by the war. But the Boat Club gallantly preserves its continuity, the Dramatic Society has produced Ben Jonson's Volpone in the last week of April, and it is hoped to hold a College dance on the last Friday of Trinity Term. We hope that old members who can do so will come and help to make it an outstanding success.

※ ※ ※

Dr. C. R. M. F. Cruttwell and Sir Warren Fisher, late Permanent Secretary to the Treasury and Head of the Civil Service, have accepted Honorary Fellowships.

On a later page, some attempt is made at a list of old members serving with the Forces. The Editor fears that, long as it is, it is far from complete or accurate, and he would welcome such news from old members. It is a great blessing and relief to be able to say that of this comparatively large number there is only one known casualty—that of H. H. Morgan, 1935-7, who by cruel luck went down on his first voyage to India. We also record with deep regret the death after a sudden illness of R. T. Case, Scholar of the College, 1937-9.

IN MEMORIAM

H. H. MORGAN, 1935-7

THE death of Hugh Morgan in the Domala is the first loss sustained by the College in the war. He came to Hertford in 1935 from Winchester, where he was a notably good head of his house. On going down, he went to Newcastle and served his apprenticeship as an engineer. When the war broke out, he joined the British-India Steamship Company, and his first voyage was in the Domala to Antwerp. On the return journey he met his death when the ship was bombed at dawn in the Channel on 2 March 1940. A survivor who was in the same life-boat as Hugh describes how they saw the ship's cook struggling in the water, unable to make the boat. At that moment the light from the destroyer engaged in rescue work failed, and all was darkness. When the light came back, Hugh was gone, and the men in the life-boat are all convinced that he went overboard to try to save the cook. His character was one of great simplicity and sweetness. He was entirely unselfconscious, and always looked for the best in other people. Hence came his great gift for friendship; for he made friends wherever he went, in the most varied walks of life. Underneath his boyish demeanour there was a fundamental seriousness and a strong religious sense; and in his short life he had already become an influence for good in the world.

COLLEGE CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

THE DILETTANTI (THE DRAMATIC SOCIETY)

THIS year has been one of great activity for the Society, activity which culminated in the production of Ben Jonson's Volpone. Following the success of The Dilettanti, which revived the fallen fortunes of the Society, it was decided to adopt the title of that play and it was under this name that the Society was billed to produce Volpone. The original production was due to be performed in the sixth week of the Hilary Term, but owing to the untimely ravages of influenza it was perforce postponed until the second week of the Trinity Term.

The play itself is a rather scholarly comedy with a swiftly moving well-knit plot. Its biting wit is directed chiefly against avarice, hypocrisy, and lust. Volpone himself, a gentleman of Venice, lives only to possess great wealth, to which end he is aided by his parasite Mosca. By feigning illness he gulls the avaricious and foolish into making him rich presents in the hope that when he dies his riches will devolve upon themselves. Volpone is, however, desirous of the wife of one of his dupes. Mosca, by pretence, brings the lady to Volpone's house, where Volpone attempts to rape her and is caught in the act by a youth, Bonario, son of another of the dupes. Thus Volpone is, after further plotting, brought to justice. The forces of law and order finally triumph in the last scene, and one is left with a sudden but satisfactory ending when all the evildoers receive severe punishments.

The casting of the play was rather difficult, as most of last year's members were called up at the beginning of the year. The freshmen nobly and more than adequately filled the breach, taking all the principal parts. William Goodger as Volpone was really excellent, and his performance was equalled (although in a contrasting manner) by Ronald Ellen as Mosca. Francis Mahony, Gerald Lester, and Maurice Chandler gave realistic studies of the rascally lawyer, the overjealous merchant, and the avaricious doddering old man. As the dwarf, eunuch, and hermaphrodite, Douglas Mason, Stephen Pratt, and Geoffrey Sharland were always amusing and enlivened the play by their fooling. Patrick Carmody made a pompous Sir Politique Would-Bee, and was gulled in a pleasing manner by John Reynolds as Peregrine. The contrast to the wickedness of the main characters was provided by John Wilson as an innocent and virtuous youth, Bonario, and still more so by Daphne Levens as Celia. We must thank her for her touching interpretation of the innocent if somewhat futile Celia, as also we must thank Frances Fraser for her competent and amusing presentation of the 'The fine Madame Would-Bee'.

Most of the credit for the success of the production must, however, be given to Nevill Coghill, whose original ideas and rather risqué presentation of certain characters gave the play a life and sparkle which it would otherwise have lacked. We should also like to thank Marcus Grischotti for the truly excellent scenery, which he designed and executed himself and which provided just the right atmosphere for the actors and the audience.

We are very grateful to the Poet Laureate, Mr. Masfield, for writing the Prologue for our play and for reading it at the Matinee.

The cast was as follows:

Androgyno ( a Hermaphrodite ) . . . . .	GEOFFREY SHARLAND
Volpone ( a Magnifico ) . . . . .	WILLIAM GOODGER
Mosca ( his Parasite ) . . . . .	RONALD ELLEN
Castrone ( a Eunuch ) . . . . .	STEPHEN PRATT
Nano ( a Dwarf ) . . . . .	DOUGLAS MASON
Voltoire ( an Advocate ) . . . . .	FRANCIS MAHONY
Corbaccio ( an old Gentleman ) . . . . .	MAURICE CHANDLER
Corvino ( a Merchant ) . . . . .	GERALD LESTER
Politique Would-Bee ( a Knight ) . . . . .	PATRICK CARMODY
Peregrine ( a Gent.-traveller ) . . . . .	JOHN REYNOLDS
Fine Madame Would-Bee ( the Knight's wife ) . . . . .	FRANCES FRASER
Celia ( the Merchant's wife ) . . . . .	DAPHNE LEVENS
Bonario ( a young Gentleman, son to Corbaccio ) . . . . .	JOHN WILSON
Avocatori ( four Magistrates ) . . . . .	STEPHEN PRATT, JOHN REYNOLDS, DOUGLAS MASON, GEOFFREY SHARLAND
Saffi ( Officers of the Law )' . . . . .	FRANCIS MARTIN, MARTIN BARRETT, ROGER DAFFUM, ALDEN WILLIAMS

THE BOAT CLUB

TEN days before the beginning of last Trinity Term the prospective First Eight assembled, and proceeded to row the boat down to the Radley College boat-house, whence all outings were made until term started under the very able supervision of Mr. V. C. Brown. On our return to Oxford we were coached successively by J. S. Stockton (Trinity), Mr. R. C. Sheriff (Kingston R.C.), whose spell of coaching was of the greatest inspiration in spite of its brevity, and finally by the Chaplain. Shortly before Eights we entertained Kingston R.C., who gave us some useful practice in the afternoon and proved to be excellent company in the evening. Meanwhile the Second Eight, coached by the Chaplain and the Secretary, developed an ability to move their boat with some effect, although to the last it remained an uncomfortable boat to watch. The races themselves were conspicuous for the duel of the First Eight with Wadham. On the first night we gained on them very considerably before they made their bump, and on the fourth were so close that we ran into them immediately after they bumped Magdalen II. In spite of these tribulations both boats made four bumps, and the second was bumped once.

The Sculling races, unfortunately arousing very little enthusiasm, were won by J. A. Worthington, and after them an eight started practising, which eventually went to Marlow. Coached by E. J. Coode, this eight was more than usually handicapped by the temporary enforced absence of many of its members, and hopes of achieving anything were not very high. Although eliminated in the first round, the race proved quite exciting. We were beaten by  $1\frac{1}{2}$  lengths by Imperial College, tying second with Lensbury B.C.

For the coming year E. J. Coode was elected Captain and D. B. Steward Hon. Sec.

The outbreak of war caused the suspension of all regular O.U.B.C. events, and in particular the need for economy in the Boat Club. We combined with Oriel B.C., and this union has been very happy, both clubs using the Oriel barge. A combined Hertford and Oriel boat was entered for the Clinker Eights Races, and met with some success. It was coached by G. Huse (Oriel) and the Chaplain, and beat University and Merton in the first round, Jesus and St. Catherine's in the second, and was beaten by St. Edmund Hall and Queen's in the semi-final. We also entered two separate crews for the Freshmen's Fours.

We determined to enter a separate Hertford crew for Torpids, which it was arranged should take place on four days in the sixth week of term. The idea was greeted with enthusiasm, but did not meet with the success it deserved, since only two other Colleges entered separate crews. Persevering in the face of arctic conditions and 'flu, the eight showed more enthusiasm than skill. But the efforts of J. S. Story (Ch. Ch.) and the Chaplain, helped by two days when we paced the Varsity crew, were able to bring us to Torpids in a tolerable condition. Starting sandwich boat, and the highest of the three colleges putting on separate boats, it surely reflects no disgrace on the boat that it fell one place, especially since it was the victim of Wadham and Keble, who made five bumps.

We cannot end these notes without recording that J. C. B. Deakin (ex-Captain, also of Kingston R.C.) rowed '2' in the Oxford boat at Henley on 2 March, and although no Blues were awarded, we can feel justifiably proud of being represented.

H.C.C.C.

THE officials for the season were:

Captain: J. F. H. Andrews; Hon. Sec.: G. R. Skinner.

The club had a fairly successful season, although they were badly handicapped by the lack of a good fast bowler, as Andrews was unable to play for most of the term, owing to proximity of Schools. Sell, Skinner, Webber, and Thomas bore the brunt of the bowling, and were well backed up by Adams and Leech. The batting on the whole was a study in contrasts, the side usually having a long tail, but Sell, Skinner, Leech, Crawford, Webber, and Gascoigne had many good knocks, and later in the term Shepherd returned to reinforce the batting. Strahan and Crawford kept wicket well, but the fielding on the whole was poor, the catching being particularly bad.

H.C.A.F.C.

THE improvement in form shown in 1938-9, when we won promotion to the Second Division, was unfortunately not maintained this season. The club was amalgamated with Oriel A.F.C., but met with very little success in the war-time League programme organized for Michaelmas Term, finishing at the bottom of its section, having recorded only one League win, against Pembroke and Corpus. The League programme arranged for Hilary Term had to be abandoned because of severe frosts in the early part of the term, and we were able to play only four matches during the whole of the term. Our only piece of success was in getting through the first round of the cup competition—thanks to a bye; but we were decisively beaten in the second round by Trinity and Balliol.

H.C.S.R.C.

THE Captain of our Squash Team, D. N. Sell, was awarded his half-blue in the Hilary Term of 1939. He became Captain of the Varsity in the Michaelmas Term, 1939. Our Squash V for the Michaelmas Term consisted of Sell, A. R. Robbins, S. Ardeshir, E. H. P. G. Wrightson, and R. Campbell. Sell and Campbell went down and their places were taken by A. R. Robinson and A. J. Neilson—both freshmen.

H.C.L.T.C.

WE had a successful season at Lawn Tennis during the Trinity Term of 1939. J. H. Maude-Roxby was awarded a 'blue' and A. S. Hooper a 'penguin'. Against Cambridge Maude-Roxby won one of his singles and lost the other. In 'coppers' our team reached the Quarter-Finals where they were beaten by Christ Church. Both Maude-Roxby and Hooper were unable to play in this match. The 'Coppers' VI consisted of Maude-Roxby, Hooper, D. N. Sell, P. J. Kenward, A. Thompson, and J. Poole-Hughes. Poole-Hughes was Captain and Thompson was secretary.
